LACK OF WATER ALLOWS FIRE TO DESTROY OLD HALL

Headquarters of Birmingham Turners on South Side Now in Ruins.

LOSS REACHES $45,000

Four Firemen Have a Narrow Escape from Death While Fighting the Flames.

ADJOINING PROPERTY SAVED

Lack of water to fight an incipient flame resulted in the destruction of the Birmingham Turnverein hall, 1735 to 1741 Jane street, South Side, one of the oldest buildings of the Turners' organization, last night at 10 o'clock. The loss is estimated at about $45,000. The building was insured for $30,000. The firemen say they would have saved the building but for the insufficient water supply. Four of them nearly lost their lives.

The members of the singing section of the organization had been rehearsing when President F. T. Lentz noticed an odor of smoke. A brief investigation was made and it was found there was a fire in the bath room, and an alarm was sent in. The firemen saw the smoke coming from the basement and expected little difficulty in fighting it.

Water Didn't Fill the Hose.

When the water was turned on their surprise came—there was not enough to supply the hose. Thinking the supply would increase the firemen delayed sending in a second alarm. The flames then shot through the upper floors. The little water being played on the building had no effect on the flames.

Assistant Chief William Bennett then sent in a second alarm. This brought the companies from the downtown and Oakland districts. Hose lines were attached to plugs from all the nearby points. However the effort was of no avail. The firemen had all they could do to keep the flames in the burning building, and they confined their efforts to save the adjoining structures. Shortly after midnight the fire was under control but the Turners' building was in ruins.

The building had a frontage of 80 feet and a depth of 120 feet, extending back to Harkins alley. The upper floors of the residence occupied by Jacob Klose, 1732 Jane street, were destroyed. The building was damaged to the extent of $5,000. Klose lost about $150 worth of furniture.

Narrow Escape of Firemen.

No one was injured, but Firemen George Smith, Charles Gue, William Moore and George Henke of No. 12 engine company had a narrow escape from being killed while working on a ladder in front of the building in Jane street. The roof of the building extended out over the pavement for some length. The firemen had placed a ladder against the third floor. The extension on the fourth floor burned away and was about to drop when the firemen saw this and hurried down the ladder. When they walked from under the ladder the extension fell, splintering the ladder before the firemen had time to remove it. The telephone, telegraph and electric light wires in front of the building were broken by the falling extension.

The building was erected in 1871 by the Turners. In 1894 the annex was constructed. The building was one of the oldest in the history of the Turners' organization in this vicinity.

EXPLOSION ON LAUNCH FATAL TO FOUR MEN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 22.—The tank of a gasoline launch which was carrying four passengers on the Mississippi river, exploded this afternoon, near Ivory station, and Fred Phee and a companion were drowned, while Edward Duffy and his son were probably fatally burned.

COL. CLARENCE R. EDWARDS, U. S. A., Chief of the Insular Bureau of the War Department.

WILL CREATE NEW PORTFOLIO IN CABINET

President to Recommend Establishing the Department of Insular Affairs.

TO PROMOTE COL. EDWARDS

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—One of the probable recommendations of President Roosevelt to congress which is now being discussed by the officials immediately concerned is for the creation of a new department—the department of insular affairs—and consequently the appointment of a new cabinet member.

This will be the result of an unsatisfactory state of affairs, which dates back to the conclusion of the war with Spain. At that time the control of the new possessions was neutrally placed in the hands of the war department since those possessions were then under military control. Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines were first governed by military rule and then by a composite of military and civil government in which there was constant friction and this condition even today is not unknown in the Philippines.

According to officials of the government the obvious head for the new department, provided congress consents to its formation, will be Col. Clarence R. Edwards, the present head of the bureau of insular affairs. It has been largely through his efforts that the bureau has increased in importance.

PROF. JUDD HANGS HIMSELF.

Former Member of the Georgetown University Faculty Commits Suicide at His Home.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 22.—Professor Sylvester Dwight Judd, aged 35, formerly an assistant in the United States geological survey at Washington, and professor of biology at Georgetown university, was found early this morning hanging by a rope from a rafter in the garret of his home on the old Frederick road, he having committed suicide.

About a year ago Professor Judd, owing to mental trouble, lost his government position. He was sent to an asylum, where, after having been treated for about 10 months, he appeared to be much improved, and was discharged about two weeks ago. That he had contemplated suicide was known.

INCENDIARIES DESTROY RIDGWAY OPERA HOUSE

RIDGWAY, PA., Oct. 22.—Fire originated simultaneously in three places in the central part of the borough last night, destroyed the opera house, the finest in this section, the loss on the building amounting to $60,000. Two barns were also destroyed. There is unmistakable evidence of incendiarism.

TWENTY PERSONS ESCAPE DEATH BY CRAWLING ALONG CORNICE

Flames Cut Off the Exit by Stairway, and Men, Women and Children Flee Through Second-Story Window.

Fleeing for their lives from a fire by crawling along a narrow cornice in front of the second-story of a building at 2507 Penn avenue, early yesterday morning, 20 persons escaped from the flames by entering the window of a neighboring house. Every one of the 20, eight of whom were children, roused from deep sleep and attired only in their night clothes, were rescued without injury.

The fire occurred in the four-story brick building occupied by Samuel Cohen, who has a confectionery on the street floor and resides in the three upper stories with his wife and eight children, two brothers-in-law and their families, and six laborers. One of Cohen's brothers-in-law is Joseph Margolias, who distinguished himself by saving the entire household by his coolness and presence of mind.

Shortly after 6 o'clock a street cleaner discovered a fire in the store room. He sent in an alarm from box 129 and after much difficulty succeeded in arousing the inmates to a sense of their danger. Meanwhile the flames had obtained considerable headway and the people in the house found their escape by the stairway from the first to the second floors cut off. They gathered panic-stricken on the second floor and Margolias took them under his protection.

A cornice runs along the store front, connected with the next house at 2505, occupied by Mrs. Sarah Moran. She had been aroused by the cries of fire and was at her window. Margolias climbed out on the cornice and, obeying him, the eight children climbed out after him. He steadied them in his arms and handed them to Mrs. Moran, who helped them through her window. Then the adults were transported in the same manner but so badly frightened that they were much harder to handle than the children. The damage by the fire to the store amounted to about $1,000, furniture $300 and building $500.

A two-story frame dwelling at 45 Barry street, occupied by the family of John Pollick, was damaged by fire at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. The fire started from a defective flue. The property is owned by John Callahan of South Twenty-fourth street. The loss was small.

TAFT'S SPEECH MAY CHANGE COURSE OF FIGHT

Attack on Cox Probably Will Have Far-Reaching Effect.

MAY INJURE TICKET

Possibility That Cincinnati Leader May Deflect the Vote of Hamilton County.

HERRICK IS GAINING GROUND

Special Telegram From
L. W. STRAYER, Staff Correspondent.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—No incident in Ohio politics within recent years has so stirred the Buckeye state as did the speech of Secretary of War Taft at Akron last evening. It is the sensation of the hour, and promises to have a far-reaching effect upon the gubernatorial campaign now nearing a close. It may even reach farther.

Secretary Taft's repudiation of George B. Cox of Cincinnati, and the entire Cincinnati machine; the stinging criticism launched at Cox, and the effort to separate Gov. Herrick from Cox in the minds of the voters, make gossip to delight the politicians of both parties.

John M. Pattison, Democratic candidate for governor, is out today with an interview in which he endeavors to make capital out of the utterances of Secretary Taft. Mr. Pattison claims the admission of Mr. Taft that Cox is a "despot" and that he controls absolutely the political affairs of Hamilton county, proves one-half the case of the Democratic orators. It only remains for them, according to the statement of Candidate Pattison, to prove Herrick's connection with the Cox organization, and he promises the people this will be done.

Cox Will Decide.

What will be the effect of the Taft speech? That is the question on the tongue of every politician in the state. Some believe it will help the Republican cause, and others think differently. As a matter of fact, it is impossible to gauge the effect until it is seen what view Mr. Cox takes of the matter. If he and his lieutenants decline to be repudiated and start out on a course of retaliation, it is possible the big majority in Hamilton county, upon which the state leaders have been counting so confidently, may be reduced to a margin just sufficient to carry through the Cincinnati municipal ticket. In this event, the Republican ticket will suffer. But it is not thought Cox will do this.

For years Cox and the secretary of war and his relatives have not been on good terms, and Cox may take the view the secretary was merely venting a personal opinion. Prominent Republicans with whom I have talked today are of the opinion there is not the slightest danger of Cox or his organization "laying down" at this time. They are working with might and main to roll up a big majority in Hamilton county, and the general opinion is they will continue the effort.

Effect on National Campaign.

Another feature of the Taft speech, which is causing much comment, is the effect it will have on the presidential campaign three years hence. Ohio has two candidates for the presidential nomination, in the public mind—Senator Foraker and Secretary Taft. Foraker is openly ambitious to secure the prize. Taft may harbor just as strong ambitions, but if he does, he has been able so far to conceal them.

Foraker lives in Cincinnati and is in harmony with Cox and the machine. Taft has rendered it impossible for him to get the support of the Cincinnati leader, thereby cutting loose and casting his fortunes with the old Hanna end of the Ohio organization, now under the leadership of Senator Dick. When the time arrives for Ohio to select her candidate for the presidential nomination, the Cox organization will naturally be for Foraker. Just as naturally the Dick organization will be for Taft. Therefore, it may be taken for granted that, whether the secretary of war even had a thought on this subject when he was flaying the Cox machine, the Taft boom is launched. There is plenty of time within the next three years for many things to happen and for conditions to shift, but from now on the public may expect to hear much of "Taft in 1908."

Herrick Is Winning Out.

Meanwhile, the gubernatorial campaign is progressing with vigor and the Republican state committee is making a fight that presages success. There is no attempt to ignore the fact that Herrick has a hard fight on his hands, but it is the opinion of men who have traveled over a large portion of the state, that he will be victorious. Had the election been held a month ago he would have been defeated. That is admitted. At the very outset of the fight he was confronted with a wall of prejudice erected by the Anti-Saloon league interests, aided and abetted by the Democratic organization, that would have overwhelmed him had the election been held then.

But as the days have passed, this prejudice has melted under the rays of truth, and men who were fooled in the beginning now understand and will stand by their party. Into every corner of the state stump speakers are going nightly, meeting the people and hammering the facts into their intellects. This sort of campaign tells, and there is no doubt but the Republicans are gaining strength daily.

"HIS MASTER'S VOICE"

SAYS NINE-TENTHS OF THE TRAMPS ARE MARRIED

Pastor Declares Figures Show Few Bachelors Among the Weary Wanderers.

"According to the best authorities, nine-tenths of these vagrants are married men," announced the Rev. Dr. Warren G. Partridge from the pulpit of the Fourth Avenue Baptist church last evening, during his sermon on "Life of a Tramp." The statement was not made to deter any who might be balanced on the matrimonial fence, but rather to illustrate the fact that the great army of weary wanderers have abandoned wives and children as well as work.

Using the parable of the prodigal son as his text the Rev. Dr. Partridge said in part:

"It is estimated that there are 80,000 tramps in the United States today. These are, mostly, able-bodied men who refuse to work when they have a chance. They are vagrants who are making a tour of the country and expect the public to freely give them board, lodging and shelter. They tramp the rural districts and commit petty crimes and many of them develop into dangerous criminals.

"But the tramps flock to the cities. In the winter they seem to enjoy the warmth of the police stations and jails and care nothing for arrest. They are parasites upon our civilization, and are mostly victims of intemperance."

WILL MAKE FAST RUN ACROSS THE CONTINENT

Miss Alice Roosevelt to Be Guest of E. H. Harriman on Trip.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Miss Alice Roosevelt is to be the guest of E. H. Harriman, the railway magnate, when he begins, probably tomorrow morning, his strenuous attempt to lower the transcontinental record. The fact is stated in private dispatches from San Francisco.

Mr. Harriman, Miss Roosevelt and other Americans who have been prominent in oriental news in the past few weeks, now are on the Pacific, passengers on the giant Pacific mail liner Siberia, the engines of which are being crowded to their utmost capacity in an effort to break the record for the run across the Pacific. The steamship is due in San Francisco tomorrow morning.

Here is what the fast train run will mean in figures:

San Francisco to Chicago, 2,349 miles; proposed running time, 50 hours; rate per hour, 46.98 miles.

Chicago to New York, 913 miles; proposed running time, 15 hours; rate per hour, 60.8 miles.

It will be the effort of Mr. Harriman to make the race to Chicago in 50 hours flat, six hours faster than the best record standing at this time. The plan is to make the run from Chicago to New York in 15 hours.

CLIFF CLIMBER FALLS; WILL PROBABLY DIE

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Oct. 22.—(Special.)—John Tracy, one of a party of three young man who tried to scale East Rock, a cliff 400 feet high, this afternoon, lost his hold when about 100 feet up and tumbled backwards. His skull was fractured and he will probably die.

Fever Takes a Jump.

PENSACOLA, FLA., Oct. 22.—Yellow fever took another upward jump today, and tonight there were reported 15 new cases and one death.

SIX MEN DROWN IN WRECK OF THEIR BOAT

Launch With Nine Occupants Collides With a Barge and Is Rolled Under It.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

BEVERLEY, N. J., Oct. 22.—A launch containing nine men, all of Philadelphia, collided with a barge in the Delaware river off this place this afternoon. Six of the launch's occupants were drowned. The other three were rescued.

Those rescued are Captain John Winch, the owner of the launch; W. F. Russell and J. Rutherford. The dead are William Winch, son of the owner of the launch; John Ellis, John Stevenson, Samuel Heron, Norman Delaney and James Yonkers.

The launch was hired by the men, who spent the day near Croyden. On the start home the launch met the tug Bristol, in command of Captain Mott, which was towing a barge. Captain Winch attempted to cross the tug's stern.

Captain Mott hailed him and tried to prevent him from doing so.

Captain Winch was standing at the wheel of the launch as he went around the stern of the tug. The hawsor of the tug struck him and knocked him overboard. Before any other member of the party could take the wheel the barge struck the launch and it rolled under the barge.

Captain Mott put the tug about and rescued three men. They left for Philadelphia late tonight.

Captain Mott, assisted by several residents of Beverly, then went in search of the bodies and were rewarded by finding three before darkness put an end to the work.

TUG SINKS A CATBOAT; FIVE PROBABLY DROWN

Yachtsmen Who Go to Rescue Find List of Names of Craft's Occupants. One Body Is Recovered.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

YONKERS, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Five persons, the body of one having been recovered, are believed to have been drowned today by the running down of a catboat by a tug off South Yonkers.

Members of the South Hudson Boat club heard cries for help out on the river and in the heavy mist were able to make out the outlines of a capsized sailboat and of a tug running rapidly down the river. The cries ceased before the yachtsmen, who had put out to the rescue in a rowboat, reached the catboat which they found deserted and with her side stove in.

In a coat aboard the boat the yachtsmen found a list of names which proved to be those of a party who had gone sailing in the boat. They were Edward Nelson, the owner of the boat; his son, Edward; Benjamin Benson, P. Simpson and Carl Thompson, all of South Yonkers. This evening the body of Benson was found not far from the scene of the collision. Nothing had been heard of the missing men up to a late hour tonight.

FOOTBALL PLAYER KILLED.

His Brother Is Kicked in the Eye in the Same Game and Will Lose the Sight of That Member.

WILLIMANTIC, CONN., Oct. 22.—John C. Dondero, 27 years old, died today as the result of an injury received in a football game in Jewett City yesterday. After a scrimmage he lay on the field unconscious and was taken to a hotel, where he died.

Doctors state a cerebral hemorrhage was the cause of Dondero's death, superinduced by the player's poor physical condition. A brother of Dondero was kicked in the eye soon afterward and will lose the eye.

KELLEHER'S DEATH IS MYSTERIOUS, THEY ADMIT

East View's Justice of the Peace Is Found in Bed of Stream With Fractured Skull.

The mysterious death by violence of Daniel J. Kelleher, the justice of the peace of East View, is engaging the attention of the coroner and the county detectives. One of the coroner's deputies thinks Kelleher was murdered by being thrown from a bridge; other deputies and the detectives think he just fell from the bridge. If it was murder, the county detectives will have perhaps the difficult task of finding the murderer.

Kelleher, who was also a contractor and builder, was found unconscious in the bed of a stream at East View, underneath the bridge at Fifth and South Sharon avenues. His skull was fractured and he was unconscious. He was taken home and died at 2 p. m. yesterday, without recovering consciousness. Deputy Coroner Frank Rohan, detailed to make an investigation, was informed that the man's pockets were turned inside out when he was found, and he was of the opinion that Kelleher was robbed and thrown over the bridge.

John Hahn of Welsh Hollow said that at 11 p. m. on Saturday, while he was on his way to meet his sister, who was to come from Pittsburgh on a street car, he met Kelleher on the bridge. They arranged to meet again after Hahn had seen his sister home. A little after 11 o'clock Hahn returned to the meeting place. He heard somebody groaning and, looking over the railing, saw a man lying below, with part of his body in the creek. Hahn summoned another man, whose name he does not know, and together they got Kelleher out of the water and took him home.

Later Deputy Coroners Lowe and Church went to East View with Dr. C. B. Schildecker, after Rohan returned from there. They learned that Kelleher, who was 43 years of age, went to Bankeville on Saturday night and paid a few bills, amounting to $8. Hahn told them Kelleher's pockets were not turned inside out when he was found, and that while his watch was gone, it had perhaps fallen into the creek, as Kelleher wore no chain.

Kelleher's son, however, gave evidence which the deputies think is worth following up. He says that about 3 p. m. on Saturday he saw his father talking with two men, who wanted him to go with them. The squire declined to accompany them. That was the last the boy saw of his father until the latter was brought home unconscious. He does not know the men, but thinks he would recognize them if confronted with them.

BANDITS RELEASE OFFICERS.

Captain and Lieutenant in the British Army Are Exchanged for Brigand Prisoner in Morocco.

TANGIER, Oct. 22.—The scoutship Pathfinder has arrived here with Capt. Crowther and Lieut. Hatton, the British officers who were captured by Moroccan tribesmen, on board. The liberation of the officers was effected through the good offices of the shereef of Wazzan, and in exchange for the brigand, Valentia, a brother of whom headed the Anjera tribesmen who made the capture.

In an interview the shereef said that there was no difficulty in effecting the exchange of prisoners, and that no ransom was asked or other conditions imposed. The officers said they were well treated by their captors.

Vermont Gets Shaking Up.

NEWPORT, VT., Oct. 22.—The heaviest earthquake ever felt in this section occurred early today. The vibration of the earth shook houses and smashed crockery. There was only one shock. It was accompanied by a sound like a distant explosion.

BANK DIRECTORS MEET SECRETLY

Enterprise Board Spends the Afternoon Discussing Affairs of Closed Institution.

T. LEE CLARK WAS UNDER BOND

Secrecy seems to be the distinguishing feature at present in the affairs of the Enterprise National bank of Allegheny. Not a day has gone by since the bank was declared insolvent and closed by the comptroller of the currency, that some of the directors and officials of the bank have not met and discussed developments. Yet nothing has been made public officially, and the bank directors say there will be no information offered until after Examiner Cunningham has finished his work.

Taking advantage of the quietness of Sunday some of the directors met yesterday afternoon. Where the meeting was held is not known. President Fred Gwinner and his son Fred left their residence on Ridge avenue shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in a carriage and gone all afternoon. Visits were made to the homes of Directors Charles Kidel, David Morrison, William A. Magee and William T. Bradberry, and some one was at home much before 6 o'clock last evening.

Attorney Thomas P. Trimble was away from home all afternoon. He said last night there was no meeting of the board of directors, but declined to say that there was no meeting of any kind. He said positively he was not at the Enterprise bank yesterday, but would not tell where he had been.

Cashier T. Lee Clark was under $25,000 bond to the Enterprise bank and in this amount the bank is further assured against any loss or defalcation. Apparently none of the directors or Attorney Trimble know the name of the bonding company, but several of them said they thought the United States Fidelity Trust Company of Baltimore was surety for the bond. Should an examination of the bank's accounts reveal any actual defalcation or misappropriation of funds by the dead cashier, the bonding company would be held responsible to the amount of the bond. The Baltimore company is surety also for about $250,000 of the state funds in the Enterprise bank.

Examiner Cunningham and his assistants spent a few hours at the bank yesterday afternoon, but closed the institution last night and went home. They have been working almost 18 hours every day since Cashier Clark killed himself, and appeared yesterday to be thoroughly tired. In an interview last night Mr. Trimble said the Clark will had not yet been read, and was uncertain as to when this formality would be attended to.

RAILROADS OF RUSSIA IN HANDS OF STRIKERS

Government Orders Battalions of the Army to Moscow for the Purpose of Moving Trains.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

MOSCOW, Oct. 22.—Traffic on seven of the nine main trunk arteries of commerce running from Moscow was completely paralyzed today by the railroad strike, and the commercial heart of Russia has been cut off from railroad communication from the rest of the Russian empire except from the narrow section to the northwestern section, including St. Petersburg and the Baltic provinces. Though the government has ordered the railroad battalions of the army to proceed to Moscow and take the places of the strikers for the purpose of restoring traffic, the revolutionists, by a sudden and unexpected blow, have shown their ability to lay their hands on the throats of the nation's commercial life.

The employes of four railroads struck today and only the lines running over the Nicholai railroad to St. Petersburg and over the Windau and Rybinsk road to Riga and other Baltic ports are open. Traffic is at a standstill on the Kazan line and on the line to Yaroslav and Archangel.

The strikers today forced the employes of the general offices and financial departments of three lines, the Windau and Rybinsk, the Moscow and Brest Litovsk and the Kieff and Voronezh to quit work. The city is already feeling the effects of a milk and meat famine and a few days' continuance of the strike will cause serious embarrassment and even suffering to the population. The renewal of the factory strikes is not improbable.

SOUTHERN REPUBLICS INVITED

Russian Ambassador Asks Governments of South America to Participate in Peace Conference.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(Special.)—From Baron Rosen, the Russian ambassador, the ministers of the various South and Central American republics have received invitations from the Russian government to attend the second peace conference at The Hague. No date is set.

It is stated that the recent war brought forth the importance of many questions which might be considered at the conference. The South and Central American governments did not participate in the first peace conference at The Hague in 1899.

DIPLOMAT FROM ABYSSINIA SEES SIGHTS IN NEW YORK

Special Envoy of Emperor Menelik to President, and Father of 200 Children, Likes Cocktails, but Says Elevators Affect His Stomach.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—El-Hagg-Abdullah Aly Sadik Pasha, prince of the Mohammedan church, general of the Abyssinian army, minister of commerce and envoy of Emperor Menelik to President Roosevelt, arrived today on the Cedric. He comes ostensibly in regard to the new treaty of commerce between this country and Abyssinia, but actually to pave the way for permanent diplomatic relations.

The Pasha is a man of striking personality. His color is ebony, but he has clearly chiselled features, the small feet and tapering fingers of the Arab.

"If the emperor could only see this through somebody's eyes," exclaimed the pasha on his return from Central park. The crowding of women on the street cars and the tall buildings impressed him most.

"What do you think of American women?" he was asked.

"I did not have time to see them," he answered. "I was busy counting the stories of the buildings."

Some one remarked that there was one building 23 stories high.

"Take me there," he said. "I will say my prayers on the roof of that house tomorrow."

He has one wife and 2,000 slaves. He is exceedingly sensitive on the subject of his children. When some one asked him how many children he had, he swept out of the room, deeply offended. His interpreter explained that the question was thought to bring bad luck and that he was not sure of the number of his children, but it was in the neighborhood of 200. He was brought back only when American ignorance had been explained to him.

"How do you like American food?" the visitor was asked.

"Give me a chance," was the interpreted answer. "I have yet tasted only the cocktail and found him pleasant; but the rooms that go up (meaning elevators) are too fast for my stomach."

PRESIDENT TAKES DIP IN THE OCEAN

Mr. Roosevelt Attends Church Services and Rests at St. Augustine.

ON HIS WAY TO ALABAMA

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ST. AUGUSTINE, FLA., Oct. 22.—President Roosevelt started tonight for his tour of Alabama. He left St. Augustine at 9 o'clock, and is not scheduled to make a stop of any length until he reaches Mobile, tomorrow afternoon at 4:30. His day in St. Augustine was a quiet one. He attended services in Presbyterian Memorial church at 11 o'clock. The pastor, the Rev. James Coffin Stout, preached from the text, "Worthy the lamb that was slain." He made no reference to the President in his sermon. The church was crowded.

At the conclusion of the services the President was taken for a short drive about the city. After luncheon the President, accompanied by Secretary Loeb, Surgeon General Rixey, John McIlhenny and John Greenaway, the last two of whom have been his guests on the trip south, drove to Fort Marion, where they boarded a launch and went to Anastasia, an island. Here the party donned bathing suits and had a bath in the salt water.

The President greatly enjoyed the bath and seemed in excellent condition to tackle the hard work that lies before him this week. When the party left the hotel for the fort the mounted policemen of St. Augustine, who had been waiting in front of the hotel, started ahead as an escort. The secret service man who was on the box with the driver of the President's carriage, said to one of them:

"We do not need you now."

"That's all right," responded the officer, "we will go along."

They galloped to the fort, where they stood at attention while the President boarded the launch and steamed away.

Dinner was served at the hotel tonight, after which the President drove to his train. St. Augustine was full of strangers today, attracted by the President. A large crowd lingered around his hotel all day, anxious to catch a glimpse of him. He received but few visitors, however, and got the rest of which he stood in need. This week will see the end of his trip.

After visiting Mobile tomorrow he will spend Tuesday at Tuskegee, Montgomery and Birmingham. Wednesday he will devote to Little Rock, Ark., and Thursday he will visit New Orleans, leaving that evening on a government vessel for Washington.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., Oct. 22.—The President's train arrived in Jacksonville at 10:12 p. m. A stop of 10 minutes was made for the purpose of changing engines and the special proceeded on its way to Mobile. The President did not leave his car.

DROPS DEAD ON PLATFORM.

Sudden Demise of Negro Mistress of Ceremonies Brings Meeting to an Abrupt Close.

WHEELING, W. VA., Oct. 22.—(Special.)—The annual memorial service of the Daughters of the Sphinx, an organization of the wives of colored Masons, was brought to an abrupt end tonight by the sudden death of Mrs. Zora P. Johns, in the Wayman African Methodist Episcopal church.

Mrs. Johns was mistress of ceremonies and had just introduced the Rev. T. A. Jeffries of Canonsburg, who was to have preached the sermon. Just as Mr. Jeffries arose to speak, Mrs. Johns fell dead. The congregation was dismissed.

AUTOMOBILE UPSETS, CHAUFFEUR IS KILLED

MADISON, N. J., Oct. 22.—A big touring car, containing three women and four men, was upset while crossing a trolley track in Hilton, near here, today. James Wilson, the chauffeur, was mortally injured and Morris Cook, of this place, was seriously injured. The machine exploded and was completely wrecked.

DEMANDS APOLOGY OF MR. JEROME

Tammany's Nominee Makes a Warlike Threat to the District Attorney.

CALLS OSBORNE A "PUPPET"

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, Oct. 22.

Demanding an apology from District Attorney Jerome for calling him a "puppet," James W. Osborne, Tammany's nominee for Mr. Jerome's office, said today if Mr. Jerome should repeat his epithet he would "know how to deal with him."

Mr. Osborne's reply to Mr. Jerome was in the nature of a direct and warlike threat. Mr. Jerome answered by practically repeating his charge, saying Mr. Osborne had been nominated by a boss and that he did not believe Mr. Osborne, if elected, would "be unfaithful to the boss who created him."

"Mr. Jerome has stated in effect," Mr. Osborne said, "that the other nominees for district attorney, including myself, are puppets and will, if elected, be subservient to political influence. I denounce this charge as false in whole and in part, and I say Mr. Jerome must have known it to be false when he made it. I call upon Mr. Jerome to produce the proof of this assertion or to apologize to me as a gentleman should do when he has been guilty of a slander.

"If he refuses to furnish his proof or withdraw his charges, then he is not honest; but a slanderer and an assassin of character.

"If this charge has been made thoughtlessly or in mistake, Mr. Jerome owes it to me and to himself to retract it, and to apologize to me.

"If, after his attention is called to it, he continues in his slander, then I will know how to deal with him."

"When I said he was a puppet of the political boss I meant that in no way was he singled out by the will of the people to be their candidate, but was simply picked out by the boss and the convention ordered to nominate him," said Jerome in reply. "I have not the slightest doubt of 'Jim' Osborne's pecuniary honesty. His difficulty will be the difficulty that every public officer has, if he is elected, who is simply picked out by a boss. I think too highly of 'Jim' Osborne to believe that, if elected, he will be unfaithful to the boss who created him. It is for this reason that I say I am running, not against Osborne, but against Charles F. Murphy."

Complete party chaos marks the municipal campaign now in full swing. It would be difficult for any man today to convince his fellows that he could tell within 75,000 the total vote of any of the nominees for mayor, or whether Jerome will be an important factor or who will carry the borough of Brooklyn.

The votes of William R. Hearst, who is running for an idea and without a party, is variously estimated by prominent members of Tammany hall, whose figures have been accurate in the past, at between 75,000 and 180,000. This shows the uncertainty of the Tammany mind.

Estimates of Mr. Ivins' strength range from 75,000 to 150,000, but it is conceded that a great many Republicans will support Mayor McClellan and Mr. Jerome, while Mr. Hearst will get some Republican support.

Mississippi Lifts Quarantine.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22.—The state health officer of Mississippi today telegraphed here that Monday all Mississippi quarantine would be raised. Another official notice announced Texas would admit people from Louisiana, who would make an affidavit they had not been near an infected point for six days previously. No deaths were reported today.

Tries to Kill Himself.

ALLIANCE, O., Oct. 22.—(Special.)—William Birch, a civil war veteran, became despondent today over a long illness and attempted to take his own life. He slashed his throat with a razor. His recovery is doubtful.

FOREIGN WOMAN PROVES EQUAL TO THE OCCASION

Her Queer Combination of Trunk and Cradle Attracts Much Interest from Big Crowd of Travelers in Railroad Station.

That "necessity is the mother of invention" was aptly illustrated by a foreign woman at the Baltimore & Ohio railroad station last evening, and for a time she was the center of an interested crowd of spectators. It is not often that foreigners are sufficiently attractive to cause the traveling public to halt on their way to the train.

From one of the incoming trains a woman alighted last evening and made her way through the crowd, with a large wash basket, to the women's waiting room, where she deposited her load on the floor and seated herself on one of the benches. After a short time a negro porter happened that way and seeing the woman's basket told her she would have to take it to the large room and keep it there while she remained in the station. The woman did not understand what the porter said, and when he moved toward her basket she leaned forward as if to protect it.

When the porter repeated his command there was a sudden wail of an infant from the basket, and, turning her attention to it, the woman put out her foot and started the basket to rocking gently. The station and women's waiting-room were crowded, and the women at once became much interested. After the infant stopped crying the woman gently raised the white covering of the basket and smoothed her child's clothing.

The basket was a carryall, being a trunk and cradle all in one piece. The woman had all her belongings packed in the bottom of the basket and on top of these she had arranged a little bed for her baby. After she began rocking the basket, which swayed as a cradle on rockers, the porter went out and secured an interpreter, who told the woman she would have to take the basket to the big waiting-room.

Without further parley, the woman arose, lifted the basket to her head and walked out through the crowd in the station to a corner, where she set it down. While carrying the basket on her head the people in the station started, for the mystery of the rocking basket was revealed to them. To the bottom of the basket the woman has fastened two small wooden rockers, making it do the service of a trunk and cradle while she was en route to her destination.

IN QUAINT GARB OF SHEPHERDESS

Miss Eva Booth Brings Israel's Costume Into Big Salvation Army Meeting.

LARGE FUND IS CONTRIBUTED

In the quaint garb of a shepherdess of ancient Israel, Miss Evangeline Booth, head of the Salvation Army in America, addressed a large audience in the Bijou theater last night. Combining the sound logic of her sermon with a sweet voice and rare elocutionary power to the theatric surroundings, she made a deep impression on her hearers. Her text was the first verse of the twenty-third Psalm. The very reading of the words, "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want," brought tears to hundreds of pairs of eyes.

It was no enthusiastic service such as is customary with the street work of the Salvationists. The bass drum was muffled. There were no jingling cymbals, no clattering tamnourines.

Miss Booth wore a robe of green under a striped cloak of orange and scarlet, and carried a shepherd's crook. She was attended by half score of boys and girls enlisted from the ranks of the Salvation Juniors, who likewise wore the shepherd's garb of scarlet and carried the picturesque staffs. The stage was set with a view to adding to the realism of the scene, which the leader affected to personify. The drop curtain showed a forest scene in early autumn and the manipulation of the lights recalled a rural environment such as David might have enjoyed when he looked after the flocks of Pathro.

Congregation Joins in Singing.

Col. Holz of Cleveland and Maj. William Andrews of the local corps conducted the services, and the presence of the officers and the choir on the stage was all that intruded on the harmony of the biblical stage arrangements. There was music by the Salvation Army band and congregational singing, but in this there was less enthusiasm than usual. There were many visitors in the theater and they played the part of spectators and seemed to manifest more interest in hearing Miss Booth's address.

Staff Capt. Wright and Lieut. Cook of Cleveland, sang the old hymn, "Blessed Jesus," as a duet, and the congregation was invited to join in the refrain. At first there was but little response, and except where groups of Salvationists sat in the boxes and the front rows, there was only a droning murmur from the audience.

Instantly Miss Booth sprang up, seized her staff and recited the familiar words of the hymn. Her voice seemed to electrify her congregation. When she called on all to sing the big auditorium rang with the sacred melody. Miss Booth paced back and forth on the stage, and led in the singing. The duetists took their seats and twice the hymn was sung, each verse rekindling the rapture of the singers, some of whom probably had not lifted their voices in a hymn for years. Those who could not catch the words hummed audibly and missed not a single note.

No Live Lambs in Pittsburgh.

It was announced that Miss Booth would appear with a live lamb in her character as a shepherdess, but when the committee appointed to procure the animal set to work on Saturday it was found that they could not get one in Pittsburgh. This was astonishing to Col. Holz and in response to further inquiries one of the committeemen told the colonel that nothing but mutton could be found in this city.

At yesterday afternoon's meeting there was an immense crowd. When the collection basket was passed over $200 was contributed. The cash contributions at the night meeting increased the fund to more than $300, beside pledges for nearly $1,000 to be paid at some future time into the Salvation Army treasury.

This afternoon Miss Booth will officiate at the formal opening of the new Industrial home conducted by the local corps at Home and Plummer streets. The Rev. Dr. W. W. Hall will deliver the dedicatory address. Tonight the special services held in connection with Miss Booth's visit will close with a rally in the Salvation Army headquarters in the old Second Presbyterian church, Penn avenue and Seventh street.

FINDS THIEVES' PLUNDER.

Hunter Along Shenango Discovers Pile of Valuable Plushes and Velvets Stolen from Cars.

NEW CASTLE, Oct. 22.—(Special.)—About $600 worth of valuable plushes and velvets was found this afternoon where they had been hidden in bushes along the Shenango river. David Brooks, who was training a hunting dog, discovered them.

The goods are in rolls and are thought to have been stolen from railroad cars. Albert Stokes and John Miller were arrested August 18, suspected of having broken into cars and stolen about $1,500 worth of goods. They were tried for breaking into cars of the Pennsylvania railroad, but the jury found them not guilty because none of the stolen goods was produced at the trial. They are still being held on charges brought by other railroad companies whose cars were entered. The goods found today are thought to have been hidden by these men.

"DEKES" WILL GATHER.

Its Annual Spread Promises to Be Largest Fraternity Banquet Ever Given in New York City.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity will hold its 59th annual convention in New York city, November 8 to 10. The fraternity has 51 chapters in colleges and universities in this country and Canada, and 30 alumni associations in the larger cities.

The convention will close with what is expected to be the largest fraternity banquet ever given in the city, in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria. In the absence of Whitelaw Reid, the president of the alumni association, Col. John J. McCook will preside. Among the speakers will be Hilary A. Herbert, ex-secretary of the navy; Victor B. Metcalf, secretary of commerce and labor, and Henry M. Hoyt, United States solicitor general.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Theodore Planz, wife of a merchant tailor, while driving an automobile today was killed. Mrs. Planz made a quick turn to avoid running down a pedestrian and the machine upset. Mrs. Plana met death almost instantly.

CUNLIFFE READS BIBLE AS RATIONS GROW SHORT

Man Who Robbed Adams Express Company of $100,000 Spends Quiet Sunday in Jail and Relinquishes Cigaret Habit

Edward George Cunliffe, who is a prisoner in the Allegheny county jail because he cannot get a bondsman to furnish $50,000 bail, spent yesterday in his cell with a copy of a Pittsburgh Sunday newspaper and a Bible for company. The good book is not new to the prisoner and he was observed by the turnkeys reading several chapters. He has no hope of finding a friend willing to furnish the bond and he is at least certain of spending nearly a month longer in the county prison.

Cunliffe rose at 7 o'clock when the gong sounded for the awakening of the prisoners. At 7:30 he enjoyed a breakfast of bread and coffee. No religious services were held in the jail and after breakfast he sat in the dim light and scanned the newspaper columns. At noon he dined on bread and tea. No evening meal is served in the jail on Sunday and it was during the long hours of the afternoon that he turned to the Bible, a volume of which is placed in every cell of the prison.

Cunliffe will be obliged to observe the prison rules which are enforced on all inmates. For breakfast this morning he will have bread and coffee and at noon will have soup made of meat and potatoes. Twice a week he will be allowed to send out for light refreshments and once a week his friends will be permitted to send him a basket of dainties. He can see visitors twice a week. As yet no person has called at the jail to see him, and strange to say no curiosity seekers have made their appearance on that mission. Cunliffe is no longer a hero.

The man who was represented to be a cigaret "fiend" cannot indulge his habit while in jail. Cigars, stogies and pipes are permitted, but cigarets are tabooed by the prison rules. The "dry, hacking cough" which was said by detectives to be one of the means of identifying the man, has not been noticed by the jail officials. He is regarded as one of the healthiest prisoners in the county's custody.

HOPES CANTEEN WILL BE ALLOWED

General Young Says He Would Like to See It Restored to Privates.

CUBA IS GREATLY IMPROVED

"I hope when the next congress meets a bill will be passed re-establishing the army canteen," said Gen. S. M. B. Young while waiting for the St. Louis limited at Union station last night. "The abolishment of the canteen in the army was a great mistake and the absence of the canteen has a tendency to demoralize the enlisted men in the United States army. Of course, the women who began the agitation to do away with the army canteen were good-hearted and well-meaning women, but they did not then and do not now understand the conditions in the army and the necessity and benefit of the army canteen.

"The officers of the army have their private clubs, where they can get beer and liquors any time they want them, but the private under present conditions, is forced to go outside the army post when he wants a drink. While the canteen was in vogue the men had pool and billiard tables and other amusements, and it was their club. The income from the canteen was used toward defraying the expenses of their mess, and through the money taken in they were able to get better and more things to eat than at present. A part of the income of the canteen was also used in paying for magazines and other reading matter, but all that has been taken away from the privates.

"When a private wants to get a drink of beer now," said Gen. Young, "and gets a permit to go outside the lines, he generally will take more than one drink, because he does not know when he will have another opportunity to get out. This condition also tempts men to steal away from the post."

Gen. Young said he agrees with Admiral Dewey that old men are a handicap to the army and navy, because the old men are not so vigorous and able to endure hardships like the young men. Gen. Young said he read Admiral Dewey's statement about old men in the navy and agrees with him, and he said he believes the old men of the army should also be replaced by young men.

Gen. Young has recently returned from Cuba, where he spent the latter part of the summer and the early fall. He said Cuba is growing wonderfully and there is every reason to believe the republic will prove a big success. He said the recent disorders brought about by the national election should not be made too much of, as Cuba is having her first real political campaign and the rivalry of the two leading parties is natural. He said Americans have built a railroad into the unopened country and are preparing to develop sugar plantations in much the same manner as the coal fields of the United States were developed by running railroads into them.

Gen. Young is on his way to San Francisco, where he will meet his daughter and her husband, who are coming home from the Philippines. Gen. Young's son-in-law is a captain in the Twenty-second regiment, U. S. A. He was accompanied to the station by Judge James S. Young of this city.

SIGHT IS RUINED.

Allegheny Man Is Dangerously Wounded in Fight With Pole.

Peter Schmidt, aged 31, of East Ohio street, Allegheny, is in the Allegheny General hospital in a critical condition, the result of a fight yesterday with an unknown Pole. Schmidt got into a quarrel with the Pole while at work on the Fifth floor of the National Biscuit Company's building at Liberty and Chestnut streets. Schmidt was struck in the right eye with a heavy truck hook and rendered unconscious.

Dr. W. A. Hodkinson ordered the man removed to the hospital, where it was found the sight of the right eye is permanently destroyed. It is feared his skull is fractured. The Pole disappeared immediately after the assault and the affair was not reported to the police until midnight. The police have learned where the Pole lives and expect to place him under arrest today.

NO FINE FOR WALSH.

Alderman and Constable Are Arrested for Trouble Caused by Prisoner.

Alderman William F. Walsh and his constable, Joseph Grimsley, were discharged yesterday at the South Side police hearings after the magistrate heard their story. Walsh the day before had issued a warrant for Francis Fogarty of 25 Steuben street on the charge of insulting a woman.

Grimsley found Fogarty at South Main and Carson streets. Fogarty resisted arrest and knocked Grimsley down. Walsh was near and sailed in with a handy-billy, also drawing his revolver. Policeman John Havells saw the disturbance and arrested the three men. Walsh and Grimsley putting up forfeits for their appearance at the hearings. Fogarty was fined $5 at the hearing and he still has to come before Walsh on the other charge.

DIES AS HE SITS IN A STREET CAR

Sudden Fatality of James Conboy, One of Best Known Engineers of Panhandle.

FIND WOMAN DEAD ON FLOOR

After handling the throttle for 30 years and never receiving an injury, and never off duty a day on account of illness, James Conboy, one of the best-known engineers on the Panhandle railroad, died last night about 8:15 o'clock while riding in a Mt. Washington street car, in Smithfield street at Fourth avenue. Death is supposed to have resulted from heart disease.

Mr. Conboy had been off duty for two or three days to attend to some private business. He was on his way to the South Side to get a train for his home at Idlewood when he was stricken by death. He was sitting in the car and fell forward in the aisle. The car was stopped and the crew and a policeman carried the unconscious man into Christy's drug store. A large crowd collected and packed the drug store and the sidewalk. The policemen sent in a call for a patrol wagon, but made no effort to clear the sidewalks to give the dying man breathing space. He was kept in the drug store until the patrol wagon arrived and then hauled to the Homeopathic hospital in Second avenue, where a physician pronounced the man dead.

Identified by Old Friend.

When the body reached the morgue it was identified by James P. Loughrey, the deputy coroner, who was well acquainted with Mr. Conboy. "Mr. Conboy occasionally stopped at the morgue to talk to me and I invited him in to see the place, but he always declined," said Loughrey. "Never mind," he would say, 'I will be there soon enough myself some day."

Mr. Conboy was 52 years of age and a native of Pittsburgh. Before entering the railroad service he was a millworker on the South Side. He served several years as fireman, and since 1877 was engineer on the Panhandle. Until 1884 he was a freight engineer, and was then transferred to passenger trains. His run was from Pittsburgh to Dennison, O., the junction point, and return. His trains west were Nos. 11 and 13 and Nos. 6 and 16 east from Dennison. Mr. Conboy is survived by his widow, whose maiden name was Burke, and two children, Chester and Miss Catherine T. Conboy. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. He resided at Idlewood, Pa., and his family was notified last night by the coroner of his death.

Found Grandmother Dead.

Mrs. Mary McCann, aged 65, a widow, of 648 Grant boulevard, was found dead at her home yesterday morning at 7 o'clock by her grandson, Leo Graham. Graham went home Saturday night about 11:30 o'clock and saw his grandmother lying on the floor, but did not disturb her. In the morning she was still lying in the same position, and it was found that she had been dead for a number of hours. Her death is attributed to heart disease.

John Shaughnessey, aged about 55, an employe of the Pittsburgh Woolen Company, 2401-7 East street, Allegheny, who was caught in a revolving shaft in the machinery at the works, died yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock at the Presbyterian hospital from an injury of the spine resulting in paralysis.

An unknown man, aged 25 or 30, was struck by a Baltimore & Ohio passenger train in the yards near the South Tenth street bridge yesterday afternoon at 4:12 o'clock. He was placed on the train, but was dead when the train reached the Smithfield street station. There was nothing in his clothes to identify him. His pockets contained $2 72 and a penknife.

Frank Gerang, aged 25, employed at the Schoen pressed steel car works in Allegheny, was crushed by a car falling on him on Saturday, dying at St. John's hospital at 9:15 last night.

OVER 10,000,000 BUSHELS GO SOUTH

Big Shipment of Coal Starts Out of Local Harbor on Sudden Rise of Rivers.

DIFFICULT TO GET CREWS

Pittsburgh river shipping interests demonstrated their ability to take advantage of a sudden rise in the rivers by getting over 10,000,000 bushels of coal out of the local harbor yesterday and starting it down the Ohio for the south.

Not until late Friday night was there a definite indication of a coalboat stage, but when the marks showed a sudden increase in the streams in both the Allegheny and Monongahela valleys, the most remarkable activity was displayed. The result is a testimonial to the promptness and experience of local marine men.

All Saturday night men were at work along the wharf lashing boats and barges stoutly to insure their safe journey down the river. Before darkness settled yesterday the following boats and tows got away: Iron Age, 17 boats and 2 freight barges; Joe Walton, 12 boats and 6 barges; Charley Brown, 13 boats and 8 barges; Coal City, 2 boats and 22 barges; Valiant, 22 barges. This shipment was made by the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke Company and represents almost 9,000,000 bushels. This coal was consigned to Louisville and Cincinnati.

Among the independent shippers the Jamison Coal Company, United Coal Company and the Dilworth Company sent tows south. The following were sent to Cincinnati and Louisville: Frank Gilmore, 15 barges; W. H. Flint, 15 barges, and the Gleaner with 17 boats. This added to the shipment of the River Coal company, totals over 10,000,000 bushels that have left the local harbor within the past 48 hours.

The present stage was peculiar in its sudden advent and the difficulty the river interests met in securing enough men to man the boats. Almost any day hundreds of idle men can be found loafing along the water front, apparently waiting for a rise to furnish them with something to do. In the small hours of Saturday and Sunday morning representatives of the coal companies scoured the city for men to make up crews to handle the big shipments. It is a fact that in the city police stations they succeeded in getting the majority of men who are not regularly employed nivermen with experience.

When it was assured there would be enough water to allow shipping, every police station was visited and most of the lodgers sleeping there promptly agreed to take jobs. In the marine boarding house in Water street not one of the men aroused from his slumbers would consent to leave his bed to go to work. The same experience was met at the Salvation Army headquarters and the quarters of the Volunteers of America, where every night scores of idle men find lodgings.

Had there been more willingness to work shown most of the steamers and tows would have got away earlier. The river company offered special inducements in the way of wages to get men quickly, and in many instances ship carpenters took jobs as deck hands and workers on the big fleets.

Down at Davis Island dam the United States employes have been at work almost constantly since Friday afternoon. On Saturday night there was 12 feet of water at the dam and yesterday there was still 10 feet. The big steamers and the heavy and seemingly unwieldy tows maneuvered for positions and carefully worked their way through the locks. All the boats got away from the dam without accident.

Another shipment of coal will likely get out today. It is expected the depth of water sufficient for coal movement will not last longer than tonight or tomorrow morning.

FINES FOR WIFE-BEATERS.

Police Interrupt a Card Game and Capture Three Players.

At the South Side hearings yesterday morning two alleged wife-beaters and three men charged with gambling were fined.

William Baker was arrested Saturday night by Officer W. D. Moore, and the policeman testified that Baker was threatening to kill his wife with an ax when he arrived upon the scene and that he had struck her over the head with a glass. Baker was fined $10 or 30 days to the workhouse.

Anton Livenduski was arrested at 7:20 o'clock yesterday morning in Harcum alley by Lieutenant Charles McAfee. He testified that Livenduski had struck his wife over the head with a beer bottle and the wound was bleeding freely, a pool of blood being found on the floor. He also said that the accused man had been arrested twice before on a similar offense. He was given a fine of $25 or six months in the workhouse.

A game at 28 South Eighteenth street was raided Saturday night by Lieutenant Charles McAfee. He says he found $34 80 on the table. He succeeded in capturing three of the participants, Andy Montello, George Montello and Mike Witha. Andrew Montello forfeited $25 while the other two paid a fine of $10 each.

Roy Tanney of Bingham, Pa., was arrested early yesterday morning. It was alleged he had tried to force an entrance into a houseboat at the foot of South First street. He was given the option of $5 fine or 10 days to jail.

CONVENTION CLOSES.

Annual Session of Young Men's Christian Associations of Pittsburgh District Concludes in Sewickley.

The thirteenth annual convention of the 25 Young Men's Christian associations in the Pittsburgh district closed at Sewickley yesterday. At 9 o'clock in the morning at the association's building, there was a "conversation" meeting. "Bible Study and Personal Evangelism" was discussed under the leadership of Fred S. Goodman of New York. At 11 o'clock the delegates went to the various churches, taking active part.

At 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon there were several meetings. James W. Wardrop of Pittsburgh addressed a mass meeting for men in the Methodist Episcopal church, his subject being "Am I a Jonah?" The Pitcairn Y. M. C. A. quartet furnished music. At the same hour there was a women's meeting in the United Presbyterian church addressed by Mrs. George F. Robinson of Allegheny. The boys also had a meeting in the association building, F. A. Crosby, boys work secretary, addressing them on "Keep Your Grip." At 6:45 o'clock the delegates attended the young people's meetings at the different churches. At 7:45 the regular church services were held, the pulpits supplied by the convention men.

Organize a Denver Club.

The Braddock Elks have formed a Denver club with 75 members for the purpose of attending the grand lodge session in the Colorado city next July. The club will give entertainments this winter to raise a Denver fund to help defray expenses. Charles A. Loughman has been appointed captain and will drill the members for participation in the annual parade. The members of the Denver committee are: Harry J. Learn, chairman; J. W. Donaney, secretary and treasurer; John F. Lowers, J. J. McCarthy and R. J. Butler.

Breaks Into Boys' Poker Game.

A very interesting game of poker was in progress at South Tenth and Bingham streets yesterday when Officer James Hagan surprised the participants. All were boys and escaped with the exception of John O'Brien, aged 15, of 174 South Seventeenth street. He was later released on a forfeit. Two decks of cards were taken as evidence.

The Reason Why.

Why country banks cannot pay any interest on deposits, or at least only a very small interest, is made very clear in one of the chapters of a booklet issued by the Pittsburgh Bank for Savings of this city, in describing its system of Banking by Mail. This bank, founded in 1882, has assets amounting to $15,000,000 and pays Four per cent interest on deposits. The bank will mail a free copy of the booklet to those interested in the safe and profitable investment of their money.

TWO MONUMENT COMMISSIONERS

GEN. JOHN A. WILEY.

CAPT. JOHN STEEL.

FINE MEMORIAL FOR RESERVES

Deeds of the Famous Old Regiments to Be Commemorated at Antietam.

COMMISSIONERS ARE BUSY

The battle of Antietam was fought all over again in the lobby of the Seventh Avenue hotel last night. There was only one general upon the field, but he supplied a deficiency in numbers by commanding in person. There was no rattle of musketry, no thunder of artillery and no smoke but that which curled up from after-dinner cigars. Nevertheless a victory was won and the combatants sought their bivouac with the satisfaction of having their campaign well in hand.

The participants in this bloodless fray were Gen. John A. Wiley of Franklin, Daniel McWilliams, former county commissioner; John Steel, retired assistant chief of the Pittsburgh fire department, and John A. Diebold of Allegheny. Forty years ago they were members of the celebrated Eighth Pennsylvania Reserves, and this morning will go to Antietam as a committee from their regiment to select a site for a monument to be erected on the battleground. They gathered in the hotel last night to complete the arrangements for their mission, but as each comrade came in heavy marching order and prepared for all exigencies, they were soon enabled to turn their conversation to old reminiscences.

"There were five of us behind a big rock at South mountain," said Chief Steel. "Two of the boys were killed instantly as they rose up to fire and another was struck in the chest. The woods were full of rebel sharpshooters and they were picking us off from all directions. When our third man was wounded he reached up, and pointing behind a pile of cordwood that concealed the rebel who had shot him, called to us to shoot quick. We then advanced and that night our boy died in a little hospital at the foot of the mountain."

This is a sample of the stories, and there were scores of others. Comrades were spoken of as "Jim," "Dick," "Bill," "Jack" and "Tom." An incident that occurred at the camp at Tennally Town would be recited with much merriment, but in nearly every case they would grow sober when some one would add the sequel—"poor Joe was killed at Gaines Mill" or "Dave lost his leg in the Wilderness."

The committee will leave Pittsburgh on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and will go to Keedysville, Md. Tomorrow they will visit the battlefield with the state commission and committees from the Third, Fourth and Seventh Reserve regiments and locate the places for the monuments. The Reserves at Antietam were commanded by Gen. George G. Meade and formed one of the divisions of "Fighting Joe" Hooker's wing of McClelland's forces. Hooker advanced through Keedysville after the victory at South Mountain and formed the vanguard of the Union right. The Reserves opened the battle against "Stonewall" Jackson's corps at dawn and met terrific losses.

The farm on which the Reserves fought is known in history as the "Miller homestead," and the land is still owned by the same family. The monuments will be erected on the spot of the Reserves' extreme advance and most desperate fighting, in positions corresponding to those occupied in the battle. As soon as the sites are selected negotiations will be opened for the purchase of several square rods of ground for each monument.

The state will appropriate about $2,500 for each regimental memorial. To this sum there are likely to be added many private donations. Many members of the Eighth have made fortunes since their return from the army and the old command doubtless will have one of the handsomest shafts on the field.

"We expect to lose no time," said Gen. Wiley last night, "and hope to have the monuments unveiled on September 17, 1906, on the forty-fourth anniversary of the battle. At that time the state will furnish a fund to enable all survivors of the regiments to visit the field."

Gen. Wiley goes as a member of the state commission. The other commissioners are Judge R. N. Henderson of Carlisle and Alexander F. Nicholas of Philadelphia.

WILL UNVEIL MONUMENT TO GALLANT FIFTY-FOURTH

Twelve survivors of the Fifty-fourth Pennsylvania volunteers, with their wives, will leave Braddock this morning for New Market, Va., where the annual regimental reunion will be held. It was at New Market that the Fifty-fourth regiment was cut to pieces by Early's troops, and this year a $2,000 monument will be unveiled on the battlefield. The money was appropriated by the last legislature. This evening the members of the regiment will be entertained at Winchester, Va.

KNOCKS DOWN DETECTIVE.

Friend of E. E. Byers, Charged With Larceny, Finds Riley Can Hit.

E. E. Byers was arrested yesterday morning by Detective William A. Riley on a charge of stealing a diamond ring valued at $500. As the detective and the prisoner walked away from the latter's house in the East End one of Byers' friends knocked Riley down. The detective promptly arose and floored his assailant, leaving him lying on the ground, while he proceeded to the Central police station with his prisoner.

Byers was employed by J. A. Giles, a housecleaner, and Giles charges that while cleaning a house in the East End Byers took the ring from a number hanging on a hook in the door jamb. The ring has been recovered.

POLES HAVE A FIGHT, AND FOUR ARE ARRESTED

A fight took place yesterday afternoon at a Hungarian boarding house in River avenue, near Pine street, Allegheny, which was stopped by Policeman James Crann, assisted by several firemen from No. 8 engine house. John Bisky and Mike Thoma, who board at the house; Mike Gosavich of East Ohio street, and Matt Graton of Penn avenue, Pittsburgh, were arrested. All of them were more or less cut and bruised about the head and face during the fight.

SLUMMING TOUR IS LED BY CYCLONE EVANGELIST

Band of Preachers, Gathering Local Color for Services, Intrudes on Poker Game Among Other Things.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 22.—Under the leadership of the Rev. Joseph H. Weber, a westerner who styles himself "The Cyclone Evangelist," the Methodist ministers of Trenton last night made a tour of the city's saloons and dance halls, distributing tracts, singing hymns, making prayers and exhorting in each of the resorts.

The tour was made to gather "local color" for a series of revival services to be held in the Methodist churches here. The dominies were received in the saloons with varying degrees of interest and enthusiasm. In one of them the habitues listened attentively, and even joined in the singing; in others surly looks greeted white neckties and clerical attire, while in not a few the preachers were invited to "take one with us."

In one place a poker game was interrupted, but the excitement subsided when Mr. Weber asserted that he was merely on a spiritual mission and had no intention of gathering evidence for the grand jury.

Monday, October 23, 1905.

It is among the probabilities the President may recommend the creation of a new executive department, that of insular affairs. There are many plausible reasons to urge in favor of such a creation, for the insular possessions are rapidly passing from the proper jurisdiction of the war department. Porto Rico and Hawaii are enjoying profound peace and the Philippines soon will be.

An apparent attempt to wreck an express train figured in yesterday's local news. These villainous attempts are increasingly frequent. For one thing the penalty attached to this crime is wholly inadequate. The wreck of a fast train almost inevitably means loss of life and should be on the same plane as murder. The punishment for wrecking trains, or attempting to do so, should be the same as for murder or attempt to murder. Legislators will do well to make a note of it.

It develops the meetings of prominent West Virginia Republicans, which have been widely advertised as being insurrectionary, are not for factional purposes. There is no attack on Senator Elkins contemplated; no preparations to put up candidates for office. The subject under consideration is the new tax system recently put in operation. It is not even a conspiracy to wipe out the law, the intent being to perfect it by eliminating its crudities. The Republicans of West Virginia are united and harmonious.

In connection with the shipment of 10,000,000 bushels of Pittsburgh coal to southern markets a scarcity of labor has been found. Idle men were found in the missions, but they refused to respond to the call. This state of affairs deserves attention. The hospitality extended by a charitable public through the Salvation Army and other worthy agencies is intended for the unfortunate, not for habitual loafers. The man who refuses to work when he can will be the better for a pinch of poverty without charitable amelioration.

In addition to voting for state officers, Ohio electors will act on a proposed amendment to the state constitution. The amendment is for the purpose of relieving state, county and municipal bonds of taxation. To a Pennsylvanian this does not look like good policy. Ohio is in debt and it will be more advantage to it to have the revenues derived from taxation of bonds than to have its state bonds freed from taxation. Pennsylvania finds the taxation of bonds of all kinds a satisfactory means of raising revenue to get and to keep the state out of debt.

There is some divergence of opinion in Ohio concerning the effect of Secretary Taft's speech, reported by The Gazette's staff correspondent. This indicates the confusion and turmoil of the campaign. At this distance the speech has but one meaning and before election day it will have that significance in Ohio. It puts Cox out of the position given him by the Democratic propaganda. As to the future it is probable Judge Taft will become promising presidential timber. There is nothing to regret in that. The Republican party can safely go to the people with a man like Taft.

There has been a revival of the Loughren case by the police bureau, obviously for political purposes. This case has been twice before the grand jury and after the bill had been ignored the second time the police bureau was invited by the district attorney to attend a meeting for investigation of the circumstances. The invitation was first accepted and then declined. Now an independent petition is presented to court by the police, asking for another return to the grand jury and charging illegal practices. It is timed to prevent judicial investigation before the election and is, therefore, under suspicion.

It is significant of the manner in which Mayor Weaver of Philadelphia is keeping his pledge to use his "administration and every part of it" for partisan purposes, that the police were never so busy. David Martin said the other day: "Ask any old man in this city if he ever saw the police employed in politics as they are being used in this ward today. Stokely, in his palmiest days, never used the police as the City party is using them now." Stokely's day was before the Bullitt bill. His regime contributed mightily to creating the sentiment that demanded restriction of the political activity of the police in cities.

Truth May Soon Be Known.

Officers of the Enterprise National bank predict it will be able to open its doors within two weeks. The Gazette hopes this is true, because if the bank may open within two weeks all the facts pertaining to its closing may be made public before that time. The election will take place two weeks from tomorrow and the whole truth may be known before the election. It ought to be published as soon as possible.

There have been so many reckless statements—misstatements many of them certainly are—made in connection with this disaster that a plain statement of facts must be made in justice to the public. There is unusual interest and it should be satisfied. The light should be turned on so it will illuminate all of the dark places. Meantime it is only fair to caution the people to suspend judgment, to accept partisan statements with due allowance only. Unscrupulous men and unscrupulous newspapers are flaunting the failure in its worst light; exaggerating the little that is known; manufacturing charges without any foundation in fact; drawing inferences that may be wholly erroneous and making unwarranted assumptions. Intelligent people should beware of these sensation mongers, especially as there is now a prospect of early, accurate information.

The Gazette desires to have the whole truth told and that at the earliest possible date. There should be no concealment. At the same time it has no words too strong for condemnation of the scandal-mongers who take advantage of the period of uncertainty to circulate damaging reports about anybody and everybody they happen to have a grievance against. These people have no honest or legitimate purpose. They simply wish to destroy public confidence, even to the wrecking of banks for their own selfish ends.

A Remarkable Speech.

Judge William H. Taft made a remarkable speech in Akron Saturday night. It was a strong, sensible, frank utterance from a big, honest, courageous man. It ought to have immense influence in the Ohio campaign. It cannot fail to appeal to all who heard it, or who will read it, and every voter in the Buckeye state should read it.

It has been a favorite charge of the Ohio Democrats that Gov. Herrick is, in some way, connected with George B. Cox, boss of Cincinnati. The secretary of war not only punctured that falsehood, but denounced the boss in roundest terms. Judge Taft hails from Cincinnati himself, so he is familiar with his subject. He knows Cox and he knows just how far the Cox influence extends. He took a chance on estranging the Cox vote and he took it without hesitation.

Secretary Taft was equally frank and truthful in discussing Gov. Herrick and the Anti-Saloon league. The trouble with the league, he said, is the resentment of its leaders because Gov. Herrick refused to be dictated to by them when he was convinced his official duty lay in the other direction. Gov. Herrick has been a good state executive, has discharged the duties of his office faithfully without fear or favor, has defended the interests of the people and has made war on the notorious lobby. He has been renominated in accord with the Ohio custom and deserves re-election on his merits. He will be re-elected, too, unless all signs fail.

Britain's Army Problem.

Recent foreign developments and agitation at home have aroused our British cousins to what they think is the necessity of increasing their force of available fighting men, and that immediately. The bugaboo of invasion is ever before the people of England. In former years this danger was anticipated from the French, but latterly the establishment of the friendliest relations with her Gallic neighbors has removed this fear from the English mind. However, there are other neighbors, equally powerful and admittedly more hostile, whose every movement is watched with growing anxiety. London newspapers are full of letters from military experts and other prominent persons calling attention to the paucity of armed and trained defenders at home, and asking what the war office is going to do about it. An immediate increase in the land defenses, instead of "the building and maintaining of an overwhelming navy," is urged from all sides. "Even with ever so powerful a fleet," declares one correspondent, "conditions are likely to arise where an enemy, rushing 20,000 men for a short voyage upon 10 of the biggest Atlantic liners, might manage to land that number of troops upon some part of our coast. That mischance must ever be provided against by trained British troops."

Many plans are presented for raising a civilian force of from 800,000 to 1,000,000 men, ready to rally to the defense of home and country. Conscription is suggested, though it does not seem to meet the popular approval. Instruction in the use of the rifle for every schoolboy above the age of 14 is advocated. Bennet Burleigh, the war correspondent, advises a government appropriation for the training of 20,000 volunteer drill sergeants, each sergeant, in turn, to recruit and train 20 men, thus giving an available force of 400,000. Germany's magnificent military resources, in her large body of civilian soldiers, are cited in this connection. The excitement in England over this discussion, in which thoughtful, influential persons are participating, will doubtless lead to a strengthening of the home guard. At least one newspaper which is advocating such action is known to be in close personal touch with the king, which leads to the belief that the agitation may, in some degree, be inspired from high sources. Great Britain's navy would make it difficult for any nation to land an effective force, and more difficult to maintain it. The real object is to get a fighting force for use abroad, or as a reserve when the whole army is sent away. Good treatment of the volunteers is the solution urged by the Spectator, and that will likely accomplish the desired result as well as any other measure.

Police Failures.

There is natural inquiry why the police refuse to close gambling rooms and arrest gamblers on complaint of citizens. The answer was given in the Republican platform issued on Saturday. The places are tolerated and protected by the administration for a consideration. Whether this consideration is political service, or cash, or both, is not clear and is immaterial. The salient aspect is that gambling goes on to the discredit of the city until the handful of county detectives are called in to abate the evil.

There is a vast territory outside the cities and boroughs that calls heavily on the energies of the county detectives and in which they were expected to operate mainly, leaving the protection of the public in cities and boroughs to the police paid for that purpose. Of course, it is impossible for eight men to police the rural districts, but they are ever ready to respond to calls for their service and have proved remarkably efficient in bringing offenders to book. Conditions have been such, however, these officers have been compelled to give some of their time to the cities and boroughs, performing duties neglected or refused by the police. These are matters in which the public is interested and though the police administration may use every effort to smirch the district attorney's office, the people will not be deceived. They know where the misfeasance is.

A Ballooning Craze.

Ballooning is now the chief amusement of the Paris "smart set" and of some others. For the past five years automobiling has taken the greater part of time of the wealthy Parisians, degenerating into an almost continuous succession of speed contests. In part that diversion has exhausted its "thrill" and in part the law has restricted the sport in the interest of safety for other users of the highways.

Aerial navigation offers new sensations and has been greedily accepted as a substitute for terrestrial motoring. The motor balloon, more or less dirigible, is, of course, the favorite and already racing with these machines has begun. It is probable the law will not soon interfere with speed contests in the region of the clouds—not until the dropping of aeronauts and motor balloons on the heads of earth dwellers becomes a nuisance. Having become a fashionable fad ballooning is quite certain to reach a stage of imposition on the plain people, but this may happily be postponed a few years. Meanwhile the people who apply themselves to ordinary tasks may congratulate themselves because the "smart set" has "got off the earth."

In some quarters there are strenuous objections to having debtors of the Enterprise National bank settle their accounts. These objections are not shared by stockholders of the bank.

Few Democrats in Pennsylvania have official records to defend and nearly all of the few Democrats who have been in office have records that are indefensible.

That New York sculptor who demolished his female personification of the angel Michael might have done better to have preserved and named it Dennis.

County detectives continue to close protected gambling joints and the police administration retaliates by railing at the district attorney's office.

Obviously the Leader is fearful the facts in the Enterprise National bank case will come out and stop its campaign of falsification.

Berry quickly tired of exploiting the administration of Amos C. Noyes, Democrat, in the state treasury.

Paris has the ballooning craze. Automobile racing is not quite exciting enough for Parisian nerves.

There is an open opportunity for Dempster and Clark to define their views on road building.

The Jerome party is a picturesque addition to the New York city campaign.

Jeff Davis has made his little break, but Gov. Vardaman is strangely silent.

Count Castellane is out of politics Berry will soon keep him company.

Pittsburgh locomotives are going to Zanzibar. No longer Darkest Africa.

There would be an industrial boom if the railroads could handle it.

Judge Taft's compliments to George B. Cox were quite energetic.

President Roosevelt needed only to go into the south to annex it.

It is difficult to believe anything that is printed in the Leader.

They should have a rousing "corn night" cut in Kansas.

Strikes have become quite the ordinary thing in Russia.

QUIET OBSERVATIONS ON WAYS OF WORLD

The Woes of Matrimony Do Not Deter Others from Breaking In.

By ERASMUS WILSON.

It's a sigh and a song—but we are drifting along
To vales where the daisies and violets throng;
With courage that fails not, with faith that is strong,
We drift to the light of the morning!

Though bitter the crosses, the sorrows and cares,
We look to the future—the beautiful years;
And light glimmers bright through the rain of our tears—
We drift to the light of the morning!

And life takes on beauty, and splendid beams
The light on the hillside, the valleys and streams;
And sorrow is only an echo of dreams
As we drift to the light of the morning!

—F. L. Stanton.

It's a sigh and a song, but the sigh can never drown the song.

This is especially true in the matter of matrimony, else there would not be the crush to get in and the rush to get out.

Singular, isn't it, that the woes encountered by countless others do not deter us from entering the same path cheerfully and hopefully?

Were it not so the earth would have been depopulated long ago—at least, the civilized parts, for wherever there is civilization there is domestic discord, and discord means desolation.

You may not agree that domestic infelicity, divorce and their kindred ills, are products of civilization; but the fact is that there are less of these among partly civilized people than among those who claim to be enlightened, and to hold the true religion, while savages are scarcely troubled with them at all.

It used to be said that among the poor, the illiterate, the lower classes, was to be found more domestic infelicity than among the more cultured classes. This may be true, but if it is, they manage to keep it quieter than do the others.

You may have some facts and figures, or personal observations on which to base a conclusion. Think it over, and then decide whether divorce is a pagan or a Christian institution.

* * *

Before you married did you note the evidences of wrecked lives and fortunes, the shattered hopes, the inherited miseries of those who had not long preceded you on the matrimonial path?

Hardly, else you wouldn't have had the heart to make the venture.

Or, did you note the evidences of prosperity, happiness and domestic felicity, and seeing them so numerous, and so great, you decided to take the matrimonial way?

Hardly, for you were so completely absorbed in your own affairs that you didn't note whether Tom was miserable, or Dick was happy, or Harry was resigned to his fate.

What mattered it to you if your dearest friend was either plaintiff or defendant in a divorce suit, or that an old chum had gone to the bad after leaving the altar, or that a once lovely and loving pair were living a cat-and-dog life?

* * *

How fortunate, how very fortunate, that nature has ordered it so. Were it not so, there would be race suicide sure enough.

All animals mate because they were built that way, to use a common figure of speech.

Men and women mate because they are animals. The human animal is brought forth, fed, nourished and lives as do other animals.

The human animal, however, has, or may have, that which distinguishes it from others, that which raises it above them.

This distinguishing feature was given to him by his creator, and it was called a soul. The attributes of this element are love, gentleness and goodness.

The human animal possessed of this soul element, is gentle, loving and good, so that it is not difficult to distinguish between those who have souls and those who have none or, at best, hardly any.

* * *

Why did you marry?

The chances are that you can't give a clear and satisfactory reason for this, the most important act of your life.

As our Quaker friends would say, you may have had a concern to marry, and that is all there is to it.

To have a concern, or to be concerned, to do some particular thing, is to be impelled to do it by some power above you, acting from within, or through your feelings—a moving of the spirit rather than a prompting of appetite.

Every impulse to act is not a concern, therefore it is always well to resist an impulse to do that which is out of the ordinary routine, for resistance will soon determine whether the impulse is due to animal appetite or from the higher nature.

Fascination, a phase of animal magnetism, is of short duration, while love, which is of the higher, or spiritual nature, is enduring, even forever.

* * *

Why do you want to marry?

Have you ever tried to answer this question to yourself? If so, did you find an answer better than "just because?" If you are a woman you won't want any better; but if you are a man you might want to make more or less show of reasons why you propose taking such an important step.

It may be too much to say that some get married merely for the sake of the wedding function, it being so nice, so exciting, and so costly. And yet there are those whose enjoyment, health and usefulness seem to have died with the sounds of the wedding bells.

You will do well to ask yourself why you are about to marry, and then answer to your own satisfaction, for it is a step that carries you into a new phase of life, a phase fraught with endless cares and grave responsibilities, and in strong contrast with the picnic phase.

For those who choose wisely and mate well, marriage hath many blessings, much joy, and great rewards. It must be so, for nature pays high premiums for right living, which means a careful and intelligent observance of her laws.

Be sure that you are in all respects as nature would have you be, and then accept none but a congenial mate.

INNOCENT WOMEN VICTIMS OF POLICE

"Curfew Law" in New York Makes Policeman Judge of Everyone Out at Night.

By FRANK A. PARKER.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Every man in New York who has a wife, sister or sweetheart—and that includes most of us—feels a personal interest in the order of Capt. Dooley of the Tenderloin police district that every woman found alone on the street after 10 o'clock at night shall be arrested. To be sure, the captain's order is not quite so broad (it is that the woman must have a bad reputation to cause her arrest), but this question is left to the police to settle, and at least a half a dozen of them have settled it on the wrong side of the ledger—that is, they have taken into custody women against whom there was no reproach. The policemen of New York have only an ordinary amount of sense—if they had more they would not be policemen. Of course, that is their misfortune, but the rest of us are likely to suffer also. It is because of this fact that the order of Capt. Dooley has created such a sensation in this city of Gotham. The police know most of the women of bad reputation who walk the streets of the city, but they have so far succeeded in picking up more honest women than of the other sort.

The limit was reached on Friday night when a policeman arrested a young woman who was accompanied by a man. They had dined and attended the theater together. Then they started for her home, but a policeman calmly tapped the young woman on the shoulder and asked her to come with him. The protests of the escort were of no avail, the club of the officer served as a persuader, and the young woman spent the night in the police station among the thieves and the scum of the earth, and the fact that she was discharged in the morning does not lessen the humiliation she suffered.

Only One of Many.

This case simply illustrates the situation, as it is one of many, and the order was only promulgated on Thursday evening. For instance, two young women, who are of good family, and against whom there has never been a suspicion of wrongdoing, were arrested and spent a night in the station house. They did not give their names, but the reporters who saw them arraigned gave testimony that their looks belied the charge made against them. These are the things that make it difficult for the women of New York to know just what to do. They can only fear that the men who are paid to protect them are really their worst enemies. That is why we fear to allow our women friends and relatives to go out on the streets upon even the most important errands.

Women Who Work in Danger.

There are scores of women who are compelled to work until midnight. It is not their choice that they are not at home much earlier, but necessity compels them to take the work that is most remunerative. The Tenderloin district contains practically all the hotels worthy of the name. Each one of these hotels has several women employes, telephone operators, cashiers, etc., who must remain until midnight or later. Naturally they must go a block or so to a car, and just as likely they are liable to insult from the men on the street or arrest by an ignorant wearer of a uniform. There are also numerous newspaper women who are out late at night, but they are mostly armed with police cards that protect them from arrest. Then there are scores of women in New York who like to go to the theater at night, and they, too, are liable to arrest if they do not have a man in evening dress with them.

Evening Dress Covers Many Faults.

And, by the way, the mere fact that a man can afford evening clothes covers a multitude of faults in New York. There are restaurants in the Tenderloin district which would have to close were it not for the trade brought them by the women of the half world, but they are mostly of the class who wear jewels and fine raiment, and who are habitually accompanied by men in evening clothes. They ride in cabs, to be sure, and do not accost men in the street, but they are more noisy and more hilarious than the other sort of women against whom the police have started their crusade. They look for bigger game, too, and depend upon their good looks to carry them still a little further on the road they are traveling. It is from this class that the street women are recruited, women who have gone the pace, lost their early charms, and are compelled to sink a little lower in the social scale. But until they do sink, so long as they can afford cabs and diamonds and luxurious apartments in the better-known hotels and apartment houses they are immune from arrest.

Policemen Have Their Friends.

But to hark back to the arrest of women of good repute. Anyone whose business or inclination keeps him out late at night can attest that the policemen know the women at whom the order of Capt. Dooley was aimed. It is no unusual thing to see one of these unfortunate women standing on the street talking to the policeman on the beat. They are on the friendliest possible footing, and that is what makes it possible for the women to ply their trade. It would seem that the policemen in uniform are, by making these arrests of innocent women, really protecting their friends of the under world. Such results from the order are certain to kill it finally and leave the street women to do as they please. That may not be the fact, but it looks as though it were, and the Tenderloin police certainly know what they are doing.

SOME GOOD STORIES OF PITH AND MOMENT

Gossipy Chat and Anecdote of Entertaining and Instructive Character.

Carrie Nation was silenced by a quick-witted conductor down in South Missouri recently. The smasher was in a railroad car in which a half-intoxicated man was talking. When the conductor came through Carrie stood up and said: "Conductor, do you permit drunken people to ride on your train?" "Yes, I guess so," replied the man in uniform, "if you keep still and behave yourself." Carrie sank into her seat, silenced.—Kansas City Journal.

The Perfect Woman.

"Who ever saw a perfect man?" asked an Atchison revivalist. "There is no such thing." Of course no one had ever seen a perfect man, and consequently the statement of the revivalist was received in silence. The revivalist continued: "Who ever saw a perfect woman?" At this juncture a tall, thin woman arose. "Do you mean to say, madam," the evangelist asked, "that you have seen a perfect woman?" "Well, I can't just say that I have seen her," the woman replied, "but I have heard a powerful lot about her; my husband's first wife."—Kansas City Times.

Forgot Twain's Name.

Among the many people entertained by Sir Henry Irving during his lesseeship of the Lyceum was Mark Twain. Irving gave him a banquet in the green room after a performance one night, with a most distinguished company present. When Sir Henry arose to propose the guest's health, the latter's name escaped him completely, and the result was something like this, but the reader must imagine the high nasal tones of the actor, his twitches and snorts:

"Gentlemen: I arise to perform a very agreeable duty—a most extraordinary and pleasurable honor [mental aside: 'What is that name?']. We have with us tonight as our guest the most distinguished of our compatriots from across the water ['I'd give tonight's receipts if I could think who the devil he is']—a man whom you all know and love [Ha! ha!]—a man whose genial humor, whose delicate satire has amused and entertained two hemispheres' ['Drat my memory!'] a man whose name is a household word wherever the English language is spoken ['Except to me"]—A man, in a word, who is the laughing link which binds England and America closer than any international treaty can do. I propose the health—of—of—this man—I propose the health of—of—[in a sudden burst of mnemonic discovery]—of Samuel Mark Twain!"—Chicago Tribune.

Saved by Ready Wit.

Augustus Thomas, the playwright, was praising John Drew's wit.

"Drew is the wittiest man I ever met," he said. "He is never at a loss. In any crisis, any emergency, his wit saves him.

"Once in his youth he forgot his lines in a Sheridan comedy.

"Dressed up as a young rop, he stood conversing with a soldier, and suddenly his memory went back on him. Every word of his part left his head.

"He looked impatiently at the prompter. The prompter's lips moved, but Drew could not make out what the man said. So he muttered, 'Louder, prompter. Louder.' And a murmur came to him, but it was a murmur which he could not understand.

"In this crisis many a man would have given himself up for lost. Not so Mr. Drew.

"'I will return anon,' he said, and stalked off to read up his part."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Better Targets.

Dr. Fairfax Irwin of Philadelphia, the cholera specialist whom the government is sending to study the cholera outbreak in Germany, was at the University club when some one praised the excellence of the reed bird season.

"The last time I went after reed birds," Dr. Irwin said, "my companion was a greenhorn. An admirable opthalmologist, he knew no more about the sight of a gun than I know about picture writing. It is a fact that in the course of an exciting day that he got no birds, he wounded slightly two men, a cow and a horse.

"As I counted my own string at sunset, I couldn't resist saying to my companion with a sneer:

"'I wonder how it is, George, that you managed to hit so many men and cows and horses, and never a single reed bird?"

"George smiled and answered mildly:

"'I suppose it was because the cows and horses and men were so much larger than the birds.'"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Keene Was a Good Loser.

"James R. Keene, the great California millionaire, is coming east in a palace car," said somebody to Jay Gould, one summer morning in 1877. The master of financial tricks replied: "Let him come; I'll send him back in a box car."

The threat seemed likely to be carried out when Keene tried, a few years later, to corner wheat. Gould and Cammack attacked him; he was sold out by men who ought to have stood by him, and he saw his fortune literally melt away. But he never lost his nerve and calmly said: "I will walk this street in victory when those who have betrayed me today are dead or paupers."—a prediction which has been fulfilled to a large extent.—Success Magazine.

Things to Remember.

Anent the present political campaign in this county, the following from the Chester Times is pertinent: "When you are trying to determine which ticket to vote remember that the Republican candidates were fairly nominated, are men of good repute, and are well equipped for the duties of the offices for which they are candidates."—Washington Observer.

Merely a Question of Taste.

The Atlanta Constitution remarks: "Ripe 'simmons, fat 'possum. Can you beat the combination?" Perhaps not, but, with turkey and cranberry sauce at Thanksgiving, the rest of us will try to worry along.—New York Tribune.

The Lord Rector's Chance.

This would be a good time for Lord Rector Carnegie of the University of Edinburgh to clinch his popularity in Great Britain by bringing about the realization of Sir Henry Irving's dream of an endowed theater.—Baltimore American.

According to the Viewpoint.

The claim of the three big insurance companies that they could invest a man's savings to better advantage than he could himself has been completely vindicated if the proper view of "the advantage" is taken.—Detroit Free Press.

Hall of Heroes Next.

Perhaps some future philanthropist will combine two good ideas by erecting a Hall of Heroes, in which to inscribe the names of the lifesavers who fail to receive Carnegie medals.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Something Is Sure to Happen.

"An ominous quiet prevails in Kansas," says William Allen White. When Kansas is quiet, she is just trying to decide whether she will do something cranky or only foolish.—Washington Post.

Municipal ownership of public utilities and private ownership of public men are both issues in the New York campaign.—Newark Advertiser.

Interesting Happenings Concerning the People Who Are Traveling.

B. A. Worthington, first vice president and general manager of the Wabash lines east of Toledo, accompanied by Archibald Mackrell, real estate agent; H. W. McMaster, general superintendent, and G. G. Griswold, secretary to Vice President Worthington, went to Toledo in a special car over the Wabash lines last night. The party will be met at Toledo by G. G. Yeoman, secretary to President Delano. The party will stop at Loraine to inspect the improvements being made at that place by the Wabash. Four days will be spent by the party inspecting the lines from Toledo to Pittsburgh.

His Act Startles Travelers.

People on the walk leading from Union station to Liberty avenue and New Grant street were startled last night by seeing a man strike and knock a woman down. Several men started forward, while men and women glared at the man, who was tall and broad shouldered and very dignified in appearance. The man quickly helped the woman to her feet, and while brushing dust off her clothes explained his act was an accident. The couple were man and wife and while walking down the walk the man stepped on a long piece of black packing cotton. He stopped, hitched up his trousers and then leaned over to pick the thing up, thinking it was a silk boa. On discovering his mistake he threw it away, and the motion of his arm went out with such force that his hand struck his wife in the chest and she sat down on the walk. The half dozen people who had gathered about the couple laughed when they heard the explanation, but the man was angry at himself and quickly walked away with his wife.

Does the Dog Injustice.

It has become customary to call the questionable or suspicious funds of the life insurance companies under investigation in New York the "yellow dog funds." This seems to do injustice to the yellow dog. In fact, the yellow dog has long been the victim of injustice. Men who pride themselves on their catholicity of sentiment, their broad-mindedness, liberality of spirit and freedom from the pettiness of racial prejudice, will calmly heap infamy and insult on the yellow dog.—Washington Star.

Only One Kind.

There can not be two kinds of Republicans. The men who are arrayed against the Republican organization in this state, under the honored name of Lincoln, have no claims to be known as Republicans. They are seeking to gratify their own selfish ends and satisfy their ambitious aims to hold offices. The real Lincoln Republicans are those that stand by the party of Grant and Garfield and McKinley and Roosevelt.—Oil City Derrick.

SEATS OF THE MIGHTY.

Of all the chairs of church or state—
Bench, Woolsack, throne, or what you will—
'Tis written in the book of fate
The high-chair is the highest still.

Lolled in his office-chair, there sits
The master of a thousand mills;
Men toil or rest as he permits;
Men fail or prosper as he wills.

Perched on the polished bench, where strife
Cries to condemn or pleads to save,
Sits one, and blots the light from life,
Or nods another to the grave.

Squat in his place of power, behold
The monarch of a mighty land!
And destinies are lightly told,
Toyed in the hollow of his hand.

But over all and over each
Another sits, who must be reckoned;
The eternal woman comes to teach
The first of men he is but second.

Yet hardly is her reign begun
Till she must learn as she was schooled;
For lo! there comes the helpless one
And rules the ruler of the ruled.

For chairs of church, or seats of state—
Bench, Woolsack, throne, or what you will—
Are only relatively great;
The high-chair is the highest still.

TELLS THE EMPEROR ABOUT BATTLE

Admiral Togo Makes Report on the Return of His Ships from the War.

RUSSIAN ARMY DEMOBILIZING

Admiral Togo.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

TOKYO, Oct. 22.—Today was made memorable in the annals of Japan by the public entry of Admiral Togo, who came to report to the emperor the return of his fleet from the war. The distinguished naval officer arrived at Shimbashi station at 10:20 a. m. He was met by ministers of state, generals, admirals, members of the diplomatic corps and hundreds of officials and private citizens, who extended him a warm welcome to the capital. He was accompanied by his staff and Admirals Kataokaa, Kaimimura and Dewa, together with their respective staffs.

The party entered five imperial carriages placed at their disposal and, led by his majesty's aide, Admiral Inouye, drove direct to the palace, reaching there at 11 o'clock, when they were received in audience by the emperor.

Admiral Togo's carriage, escorted by a body guard of troopers, passed through a triumphal arch in front of the railway station. The streets were lined with an admiring crowd, who shouted hearty banzais as the party passed along. The ring of the enthusiastic cheers, mingled with the noise of the bands, was audible for a great distance.

Gen. Sakuma detailed three battalions of guards of honor. The battalions were composed of men from the Tokyo garrison and were under command of Maj. Gen. Togo. Four guns located at Hibiya park fired salutes. The day was a beautiful one and all Tokyo was out, irrespective of age, to welcome the victor of the battle of the Sea of Japan.

Admiral Togo, after his audience with the emperor, returned to his ship. In receiving Admiral Togo's report the emperor warmly praised the service rendered by him, his officers and men.

HARBIN, MANCHURIA, Oct. 8.—(Delayed in transmission.)—Now that the ratification of the peace treaty has been announced to the army, permission has been given by headquarters to telegraph the fact that the troops are being rapidly demobilized. All northbound trains from the positions are loaded with troops and their equipment. Half of all the native buildings in the northern part of Kuanchengtsu and vicinity have been requisitioned for use preparatory to this movement homeward and many of the huts and buildings there and elsewhere will be used by those troops which the authorities will be unable to move before winter.

Lieut. Gen. Linevitch, who has been here since October 15, contemplates a visit to Vladivostok. A prominent general has been appointed to conduct the movement of Russian prisoners from Nagasaki. The Russo-Chinese bank is preparing to reopen its former branches along the line of the South Manchuria railroad and is arranging to establish agencies at Dalny, Port Arthur, Yinkow, Mukden and Tie Pass. The Amur railroad will be immediately extended to Blagovestchensk and Kabarovsk. Local industries are being re-established.

GIANTS START A ROUGH HOUSE IN TRENTON HOTEL

Dispute With Negro Waiter Ends in Free-for-All-Fight Which Scares Guests from the Hostelry.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 22.—The New York Giants, baseball champions of the world, were the center of a storm of excitement in the Hotel Sterling, this city, early this morning, following a banquet tendered to them last night by Charles H. Gallagher, a Trenton politician and business man, after their exhibition game here yesterday afternoon with the team of the local Y. M. C. A.

The trouble was started when a negro waiter accused "Mike" Donlin, the Giants' husky center fielder, with failure to pay for a bottle of wine which had been served to him and a little party of friends. When the negro insisted he was right it is said he was given a swift punch from Donlin's powerful right that sent him sprawling to the floor with a badly damaged countenance. The party endeavored to pacify Donlin and the latter mistook the effort for a defense of the negro.

The fight then became general and it is reported several black eyes and battered faces were the result. The noise of the combat aroused many of the guests of the hotel and they fled from their rooms in scant attire, thinking a fire was in progress. Quiet was finally restored and no arrests were made.

FIFTH TRADE EXCURSION.

Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, With Representatives of Nearly 100 Firms, Starts Out Today.

The Merchants and Manufacturers' association will start today on its fifth trade excursion, which will last until Friday at 2:30 p. m., when the train will return to Pittsburgh. Twenty-nine towns will be visited and there will be receptions, speeches and banquets. The train will start at 8 a. m. today. After visiting several towns between here and Johnstown the excursionists will stop at the latter place tonight.

Nearly 100 firms will have representatives on the train, which will consist of a baggage car, seven Pullman sleeping cars and two dining cars. Tuesday night will be spent at Altoona, Wednesday night at Cumberland, Md., and Thursday night at Connellsville.

The towns to be visited are: Irwin, Jeanrette, Greensburg, Latrobe, Derry, Blairsville, Indiana, Johnstown, Ebensburg, Barnesboro, Patton, Hastings, Altoona, Tyrone, Osceola, Philipsburg, Houtzdale, Huntingdon, Everett, Bedford, Cumberland, Hyndman Meyersdale, Somerset, Connellsville, Scottdale, Mount Pleasant, Dawson, West Newton.

DRUG CLERK HERMANN GETS CHANGE OF VENUE

CUMBERLAND, MD., Oct. 22.—(Special.)—In court yesterday ex-Judge Ferdinand Williams, counsel for F. William Hermann, the young drug clerk charged with manslaughter and a criminal operation resulting in the death of Miss Jean Maxwell, asked for the removal of the case to another county, producing 25 affidavits that it is impossible to secure a fair trial in Allegany county because of the sentiment against the accused. The court announced the case would be removed to Washington county, to come up at the November term of court.

STANTON'S OLD CHURCH CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY

STEUBENVILLE, O., Oct. 22.—(Special.)—The seventy-fifth anniversary of the Methodist Protestant church of this city was celebrated today with three services. In the afternoon there was a platform meeting with addresses by pastors of the city. The Rev. H. L. Elderdice, dean of the theological seminary at Westminster, Md., delivered the sermons today. Edwin M. Stanton's mother was a charter member of this church, and the secretary of war held a paid membership there till his death.

Clark's Injuries Are Mysterious.

The McKees Rocks police are trying to find out how Thomas Clark of that borough was injured last Saturday night. Clark was found by a street car employe lying in the lower end of the town, unconscious and with two large cuts in his head. He said he had been struck by a street car on the Chartiers avenue bridge, but that is nearly a mile from the place where he was found. He is employed at the Schoenville steel works.

Labor League Holds Meeting.

The United Labor league met in regular session last night. Resolutions on the death of S. Grant Bartley, a member of the league, were adopted. The committee on factory inspection reported that its investigation was not finished.

LAYS DOWN LAW TO THE POLICE

McAdoo Says They Must Not Arrest Respectable Women on Gotham's Streets.

SCORES RAINES HOTEL MEN

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, Oct. 22.

Stirred to action by recent events in connection with the suppression of vice in the Tenderloin, Police Commissioner McAdoo today appeared personally before two platoons of policemen in the West Thirtieth street station and delivered to them an intensely earnest address.

He denounced the owners of property who reap large profits from vice, and, adding an expression of deep sympathy for the unfortunate creatures who are to be driven from the precinct, called for the aid of the newspapers in improving conditions. He also made bitter attacks on owners of Raines law hotels, "where a woman is first robbed of the price of her infamy and then, after her arrest, is compelled to pay them for the bond that releases her."

"My coming here today," said Mr. McAdoo, "is because there is an evident intent to misrepresent the orders given you with reference to keeping the streets free from vagrants and disreputable women. It was stated that Capt. Dooley had issued to you an order that any unescorted woman found in the public streets after 10 o'clock at night was to be arrested. No such order was ever issued.

"An endeavor has been made carefully and coolly to fire the public imagination with the idea that no woman, however decent or respectable, is safe in the streets after nightfall, if she is unescorted, but is liable to be arrested, dragged here to the station house and arraigned in the morning before a police magistrate.

Does Not Require Escort.

"Strictly speaking, a woman is not required by law to have a man escort to walk in the streets. A detached woman has the same rights and liberties in the public streets and avenues as a man. The law does, however, recognize a class of women known as vagrants, and has special clauses against them. You can and should arrest a woman whom you know and can prove to be a vagrant.

"Whether a magistrate holds or discharges, you must continue to do your duty. I want to be fair with you, but I do not believe any one of you once in 10 years would ignorantly make a mistake in regard to these persons. Where, therefore, it is proved to me a woman has been arrested illegally, and is otherwise of good character, I will consider a prima facie case has been established against the policeman, and that he did not make the arrest through ignorance, but wilfully, and in all probability intended to discredit the captain of this precinct, or to make the enforcement of the law odious and to bring the police department and the commissioner into disrepute.

A Scathing Arraignment.

"You are combatting great influences in enforcing these laws—the owners of the property, who reap large profits from the base and criminal uses to which it is put; the various business interests which thrive on the profligacy and prodigality of vice, and who are complaining that with them trade is dull, and, lastly, and more potent than all, those men who have grown rich on crime and vice, to whom it is a legitimate industry, whose millions are stained with the blood and tears of wretched women and outcast men, who own the large Raines law hotels, where the woman is first robbed of the price of her infamy and when she is arrested is compelled to pay them for the bond that releases her.

"Rich and influential, swaggering and blustering, these captains of the industry of vice and crime reach out their influence into the most unexpected quarters. They do not want a police captain here whom they cannot own, and even now they and their hirelings are threatening political disaster to the honest head of the city government for maintaining in office a police commissioner who is not afraid of them."

The commissioner exhorted the men to be loyal to their commander, Capt. Dooley, in whom he said he had the fullest confidence.

Raise Money for New Church.

Members of the McKees Rocks Presbyterian church subscribed $1,500 yesterday toward building another church to replace the one destroyed by a gas explosion last Monday. The usual services were held in the Sunday school room adjoining the wrecked auditorium. The Rev. O. R. Vernon, the pastor, conducted the morning and evening service and the Sunday school in the afternoon. Next Wednesday evening a congregational meeting will be held, when definite arrangements for rebuilding will be made and plans for securing additional subscriptions formulated. The Rev. Vernon stated last night that the new church will not be started until next spring.

PISTOL FIGHT BREAKS OUT IN GOTHAM ELECTRIC CAR

Passengers Throw Themselves Flat on the Floor to Escape Rain of Bullets—Three Principals Are Seriously Wounded.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Three men fought a battle with pistols on an Eighth avenue car today, and all of them were seriously injured. While the fight was being waged the car ran at top speed for half a mile, with the gong sounding an alarm and the passengers lying flat on the floor to escape the shower of bullets.

Thomas O'Brien, a truckman, jumped aboard the car at Thirty-first street and, clapping a revolver to the conductor's head, ordered him to run the car full speed, as he was pursued by a gang who intended to kill him. A moment later two more men leaped on the car and attacked the first, all three using revolvers.

When their weapons were empty the men clinched and fought with the butts of their pistols. The car rushed along the avenue, the motorman pounding the gong and the conductor shouting for the police as far as Twenty-sixth street, where several policemen boarded it and seized the three combatants, all of whom were too badly injured to offer any resistance.

O'Brien was found to have received a bullet in the neck. His assailants gave the names of Henry Prang and Thomas Sullivan. The former had been shot in the neck and the latter in the leg and arm. The three men were taken to a hospital.

O'Brien refused to state why the other two attacked him.

URGES FEDERAL CONTROL OF ARKANSAS HOT SPRINGS

Superintendent's Report to Secretary of Interior Recommends Abolishing Leasing System.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—In his annual report to the secretary of the interior, the superintendent of the Arkansas Hot Springs reservation recommended direct governmental control of the springs there. He says:

"Experience has demonstrated that the present system of operating the baths through the medium of private lessees is in conflict with public opinion and incompatible with local conditions; and that the government should, as soon as practicable, consistent with existing conditions, assume absolute and complete control of this reservation and operate the bathing interests under government supervision and control, thereby eliminating the spirit of commercialism which is manifest under present conditions, and through scientific equipment, perfection of system, order, discipline and intelligent direction extend the benefits to be derived from the healing waters, with rates adjusted to cover prudent operating expenses and necessary improvements.

"The present system, if it had any meritorious features worthy of consideration, has outlived its usefulness and should be supplanted by full government control in the management, operation and supervision of the baths."

Institute for Bible School Workers.

An institute for Bible school workers will be held in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Braddock, on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of District No. 30, Allegheny Sabbath School association. Attorney S. R. McClure will preside and the following will make addresses: S. E. Gill, "The Teacher's Vision and Work;" Miss Anna B. Law, "The Teacher's Problem."

FIGHTS EIGHT TRAMPS ON TOP OF MOVING FREIGHT

Officer Knocks Leader Down and Holds Rest of Hoboes at Point of Revolver Until Train Is Stopped.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

WILKES-BARRE, PA., Oct. 22.—Special Officer E. L. Simmers of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad had a thrilling fight with eight tramps on top of a freight train running 30 miles an hour yesterday afternoon. He boarded the train at Sunbury and in going over it discovered the eight tramps on top of a box car. All were drunk and had defied the brakemen.

A robbery had been reported up the road, and Simmers, thinking the men might have been implicated, ordered them to turn out their pockets. Two submitted to be searched, but the third, the leader of the gang, tried to throw Simmers off the car.

Simmers knocked the hobo senseless, threatened to shoot the first man who laid hands on him, drove them back at the point of his revolver until he had secured a safe place on the swaying car, and with his gun held them off until Snydertown was reached, where some of them were captured and others escaped.

PLEASED WITH WORK OF AMERICAN COLLEGE

PETER L. RONALDS DIES IN NEW YORK

"Father of American Coaching" Passes Away After a Brief Illness.

HAD BUILT TWO CASTLES

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Herald Building, Herald Square. NEW YORK, Oct. 22.

Peter Lorillard Ronalds, "Father of American Coaching," who last month completed a 1,000-mile journey with a four-in-hand as his valedictory to the sport, which for half a century he had loved, is dead. He passed away last night at his city home, No. 13 East Thirty-fifth street, after a brief illness, at the age of 79. His last hours were characteristic of the way he had lived. "Life," he said, "is sweet to me, but I do not fear death."

Mr. Ronalds, despite his advanced age, was a type who never grow old. He looked more than 50 and his hair just beginning to turn gray. He had given up coaching to take up driving. His time at his country place after he had completed his last trip on the road was devoted to learning how to manage a Panhard, which he had just bought.

He once had race horses, but did not keep them long, as he found coaching a more fascinating pastime. His first long trip was through Connecticut, Rhode Island and New York, and it was the duplicate of his last journey on the box. Mr. Ronalds was in Paris in 1853, with a coach and four dappie grays. He drove through Italy, toured Switzerland and drove in the Alpine roads.

Mr. Ronalds built 18 years ago at Newton, Conn., Castle Ronalds, after his own design. The structure was burned a year or so later, and he erected a replica of it. The second building is of solid stone, and although it resembles slightly some of the old world chateaux, it is as individual an example of architecture as may be found in this country. The castle stands in the middle of an estate of 45 acres, and is on an eminence giving a view of the surrounding country. In the interior is a rotunda in which a coach and four might readily be turned.

In the basement of the castle was a long tank in which the water was 10 feet deep. Until a year ago Mr. Ronalds arose at 6 o'clock every morning and plunged into the cold water, where he took a vigorous swim.

Mr. Ronalds was married in 1839 to Miss Mary Francis Carter of Boston. They separated in 1867. Mr. Ronalds, in April, 1900, began divorce proceedings on ground of desertion, but withdrew them.

POLICEMAN ROUNDS OUT 34 YEARS ACTIVE SERVICE

Wagonman Johnston in His Long Career Has Never Been Struck by Man Under Arrest.

William Johnston, the veteran wagonman of the Oakland police station, on last Saturday celebrated the thirty-fourth anniversary of his having donned the helmet and the blue. He has never been struck while in the discharge of his duties, and he has handled some of the worst characters the city has produced. Especially is this a noteworthy fact when it is understood that he has served for the last 10 years on the wagon at Oakland where some of the worst of the Second avenue characters are handled.

Mr. Johnston was born in Westmoreland county March 9, 1845, and was the son of Patrick and Mary Miller Johnston. His early youth was spent with his parents on their farm and he came to Pittsburgh in 1857. He entered the police service in 1871 and was a patrolman at the Central station for 15 years. Since then he has served at all the other stations and has patrolled almost every beat in the city.

In 1896 he started on a European tour, visiting many of the cities of the old country. Mr. Johnston was married in 1874 to Miss Mary O'Donnel of this city, and is the father of 12 children, four of whom are living.

He was eligible for retirement on a pension nearly 10 years ago, but has steadily refused to do so and continues in his place on the wagon. His record as a hander of criminals and drunks under arrest is unexcelled by any wagonman in the city, and his brother policemen unite in declaring that there is less friction between him and his prisoners than is the case anywhere.

BOAT GOES OVER DAM.

One of Its Occupants Drowns, but the Others Swim to Bridge Pier and Are Rescued.

MARIETTA, O., Oct. 22.—While returning from Beverly to Marietta in a motor boat this morning M. L. Williamson, dentist, Probate Judge C. B. Nixon and Will Selby, son of a wealthy oil producer, went over the dam at Lowell on the Muskingum river, and Williamson was drowned.

Dense fog caused the party to miss the canal. The boat went over the dam, capsizing, and throwing the party out. Judge Nixon and young Selby swam to a bridge pier and were rescued.

HEROES GO DOWN WITH MINNEDOSA

Deliberately Cut Loose from Frailer Vessel to Give It a Chance.

NINE LIVES ARE SACRIFICED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

PORT HURON, MICH., Oct. 22.—Nine heroes went down with the schooner Minnedosa. The angered, raging wind sent mountainous waves to batter to pieces the wooden boat wherein eight men and one woman were imprisoned. The vessel creaked and groaned and timbers snapped. The bulwarks went over. The wind hissed through the rigging and sent it piece by piece into the lake. Great seams were opening and water poured into the schooner's hold.

Ahead tumbled the steel steamer Westmount, staunch and able. Behind pitched the Melrose, a frailer vessel than the Minnedosa. The Minnedosa was going to the bottom. Every one of the nine human beings aboard her knew it. Why should they take others with them? Perhaps if cast loose the Melrose could save herself.

Capt. Jack Phillip's voice rose in command over the howling storm. One of the crew held a sharp ax. It fell, and the blow set the Melrose free. A few moments later the Minnedosa with its nine heroes and a cargo of 75,000 bushels of wheat lurched to the bottom off Harbor Beach, Lake Huron.

Those who went down with the Minnedosa were: Capt. John Phillips, Kingston, Ont.; Mrs. Phillips, the captain's wife; Arthur Waller, mate, Nova Scotia; George McDermott, Belleville, Ont.; James Allen, Nova Scotia.

A passenger and three sailors, names unknown to the captain of either the Westmount or Melrose, and whose homes are believed to be at Kingston, make up the list.

"The Minnedosa went to the bottom without a signal of distress," said Capt. Milligan of the Westmount. "The Melrose had 70,000 bushels of wheat in her hold. She is an old boat and in the gale that swept the lakes Friday night she had small chances to get into shelter alone. Suddenly there came a snap and the severed 10-inch hawser that had held the Melrose to the Minnedosa was pulled in. A clean cut marked the work of the ax. The crew of the Minnedosa had realized their doom and sought in the last moment to save the Melrose.

"I rushed between the cabin and the deck. My wife and daughter tugged at my clothes and begged of me to stay inside. They prayed; they cried. The waves beat at the doors. The water rushed in. The cabin was flooded. Nothing on the boat was dry. The bulwarks were washed away. The deck was there. The timbers were cracking, death seemed upon us. And then help came and none too soon, for the Melrose was badly battered."

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 22.—A telegram was received here today by the captain of the Corrigan fleet that the steamer Progress, which had been missing four days, had arrived at the Soo late Saturday night. The Progress carried a crew of 15, besides the captain.

The body of Fox, one of the wheelsmen of the Sheldon, which was lost off Lorain Friday, was picked up by a fish tug 10 miles west of Lorain today. It had been caught in the fish net. There was a life preserver on the body. Fox and another wheelsman leaped overboard when the storm was at its height.

GIRL COMMITS SUICIDE.

Grieving Over Death of Fiance, She Shoots Herself in Room at an Atlantic City Hotel.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 22.—Miss Annie Scott of New York committed suicide in a hotel here today by shooting herself in the right temple. Her body was found by a servant. She was about 25 years old.

It was learned the suicide was due to the fact Miss Scott's intended husband had died recently in the west. Her mother is in a New York hospital, an invalid. Both formerly lived at the Hotel Normandie in that city.

Dipiomat's Body in Burning Building.

VIENNA, Oct. 22.—The body of J. Senor Zenil, the Mexican minister, who died Friday night, had to be hurriedly removed from the undertaking establishment today, owing to the breaking out of a fire there.

LAY THE CORNER STONE OF AN ITALIAN CHURCH

In the presence of over 500 persons the cornerstone of the new Italian Roman Catholic church of the Immaculate Conception in Edmunds street, near Liberty avenue, was laid yesterday afternoon. The Rev. Father Ronaventure Piscop, pastor of the Italian Church Jerusalem at Sharpsburg, laid the stone in the absence of the Rt. Rev. Francis L. Tobin, vicar general, who was unable to be present. Father Piscop was assisted in the ceremony by the Rev. E. M. McKeever of St. John's Baptish church, Lawrenceville; the Rev. Magnus Schoebler, pastor of St. Joseph's German church, Bloomfield; the Rev. R. C. Galass, pastor of St. Peter's Italian church, New Kensington; the Rev. E. Beneventura of St. Mary's of Mt. Calvary Italian church; Braddock, and the Rev. Vincent Masselli, pastor of the new church. Before the ceremonies began there was a procession of St. Joseph's society and the children of the congregation.

After the cornerstone was laid the walls of the foundation were blessed by Father Piscop, who also delivered an address in English and Italian.

The new church will have a frontage of 44 feet and a depth of 98 feet. It will be of brick with stone trimmings. There will be but one altar, which will be of marble. The lot cost the congregation $14,500. The church will cost $10,000 and a new school to be erected, $5,000. The congregation, which numbers 450 families, will continue to hold services in their present place at 4625 Liberty avenue, until the church is dedicated, which will be about Christmas.

Why Not

Give your heart the same attention you do the other organs?

If your stomach, lungs, liver, kidneys or any other organ is in trouble, refuses to work, you hasten to repair them.

The heart never refuses as long as it has power to move, but continues to do the best it can, getting weaker and weaker, until it is past repair, and then stops. It is just as sick as the other organs, and needs help, but because it will work, you let it.

This is wrong. If your heart is weak, you should take to strengthen your heart and enable it to overcome Dizziness, Palpitation, Short Breath, Faint Spells, Pains in Heart and Side, and all other Heart difficulties.

"I had palpitation of the heart so bad that I would faint away. My doctor recommended Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and it helped me from the start."

MRS. J. C. WEIS, Cleveland, O.

The first bottle will benefit, if not, the druggist will return your money.

SEYMOUR IS THE BOSS BATTER

Official Averages Show Him to Be the Champion of the National League.

WAGNER FEW POINTS BEHIND

The official batting averages of the National league were given out by President Pulliam yesterday. As indicated in the unofficial figures published by The Gazette, Cy Seymour is the champion batter with an average of .377, with Hans Wagner second with .353. The list shows an even dozen players with averages of .300 or better. Of the 12 the Pittsburgh team has three—Wagner, Beaumont and Ganley. Fred Clarke missed getting into the charmed circle by a single point and Otis Clymer missed it by only four points.

The champion base stealers are Maloney of Chicago and Devlin of New York, each having 59 stolen bases to his credit. Wagner has 57 and Mertes 52.

Kid Gleason of Philadelphia is the champion sacrifice hitter, having 48 to his credit.

The official list includes the names of all players who took part in 15 or more championship games, and is as follows:

MATTHEWS LEADS THE HARVARD PLAYERS AT BAT

The official batting and fielding averages of the Harvard baseball team of last season have just been published in the Harvard Bulletin. Matthews, the colored shortstop, who has played his last season at Harvard, leads the hitters with a percentage of .326. He made 34 hits out of 104 times at bat, and many of his wallops were for extra bases. The averages:

SURPRISES ON THE GRIDIRON

W. U. P. Players Are Home and Say Cornell Has Hard Team to Defeat.

AFTERMATH OF BIG GAMES

What surprises there were in football Saturday were not just where they were expected to be. Brown gave the Quakers a hard battle, as was figured on, the former winning by a margin of two points; but Yale and Harvard met stiffer opposition than was generally counted on. Harvard in a game in which her opponents played as much football as the Crimson did, won by 6 to 0, the West Pointers making a big brace within a week. Last year Harvard beat the Army eleven 4 to 0. Yale encountered a husky opponent in Pennsylvania State and was forced to play its best to win 12 to 0, the game showing that Yale, speedy though it is, is in need of improvement. Last year Yale beat the same opponent 24 to 0, and Saturday was the first time this season the Blue has not improved over its 1904 score against the same opponent.

Pennsylvania beat Brown 6 to 0 last year, while Princeton made 17 more points against Lafayette Saturday than a year ago. Saturday's game sent Princeton's stock up. Columbia and Amherst played a tie game, the second tie Columbia has been in this year. Last year Amherst defeated Columbia, 12 to 0. The Carlisle Indians had an easy time of it Saturday with Dickinson, and Dartmouth disposed of Williams summarily.

The Navy team piled up a big score against North Carolina. Football scores are curious and oftimes deceptive things. The Navy beat Dickinson only 6 to 0, while the Indians beat Dickinson, 36 to 0. Yet the North Carolina team, which Pennsylvania worsted 17 to 0, is vanquished 38 to 6 by the Navy. The Indians, apparently, are a formidable proposition. The Michigan team cut loose and beat Nebraska, which is no weakling, 31 to 0.

Chicago, which is a contender for the western championship, thanks to Eckersall's sensational field goal, beat Wisconsin, 4 to 0, putting that team out of the running, so far as championship honors are concerned.

The W. U. P. football team arrived at 8 a. m. yesterday over the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie from Cornell. Speaking of the Cornell team Joe Thompson said yesterday: "The Ithacans have undoubtedly a very strong eleven. Their line is heavy and fast and was almost entirely responsible for Saturday's victory. I consider our ends far superior to Cornell's, and our backfield quite as clever and somewhat faster than theirs, but they were powerless to gain consistently with 200-pound guards and tackles repeatedly breaking through the line and blocking the plays. Our boys lacked team work. Our interference was poor and when the runner got away from the crowd, he invariably found himself alone. 'Outplayed in the line' is the whole story."

The W. U. P. boys are pretty badly bruised up, but no one was seriously injured except Edgar, whose weak ankle received another terrible twist. The Cornell rooters repeatedly applauded the fine tackling of the Pennsylvanians. Schmidt, Perry and East were in the game at all points. East worked like a Hercules to hold the tottering line together, while Perry and Schmidt tackled end runners well.

The fighting quality of the Cadets was shown Saturday in the second half, when they held Harvard for downs on their five-yard line. This was after about five minutes of gruelling scrimmaging, and the West Point line, charging more quickly than the bulky Harvard men, bent their line back and reached the runner before he could gain headway. There was some poor tackling on both sides, it being too high.

"Spook" McClintock is putting up a stubborn fight for quarterback at Princeton. He handled the team very well, and in fact so far as the actual quarterback work is concerned, he appears to have more control of the team than Tenney. One of the principal reasons Tenney holds a first grip on the place is his wonderful running. On this account, if for no other, he would prove invaluable in a hard game, provided he did not give way to his lamentable tendency to take desperate risks and do anything to make a run.

The Princeton team developed unexpected strength Saturday and played the game as she has not played it before this season. The coaches were much pleased with the masterful offensive and defensive work of the team.

Maddox, the Virginia fullback, made a great run Saturday against Bucknell, a la Poe. He ran clean across the field. Bucknell had the ball within three yards of Virginia's goal and the Pennsylvanians were crowding the Virginians hard. Maddox secured the ball, and although pursued by Bucknell made a clean run and scored a touchdown. During the run Johnson alone interfered with the majority of Bucknell's team, Warren of Virginia distinguished himself by a 30-yard run from Virginia to Pennsylvania's territory.

Stevenson, the Penn quarterback, made another sensational run Saturday against Brown. On a delayed pass Adams of Brown failed to gain and kicked to Stevenson on Penn's 35-yard line. Stevenson slipped as he started to circle the Brown players, and before he could get started had to go straight through the oncoming tackles or stop. He chose the former and in a most marvelous manner threaded his way through the entire team unaided by any interference. He got safely by all except Adams and tried to hurdle him, but fell, and before he could regain his feet was downed. But he had covered 28 yards and made the most sensational run of the year on Franklin field.

Otterbein beat the Ohio university Saturday at Athens 6 to 5.

Lawrenceville school defeated the University of Pennsylvania freshmen at Franklin field by the score of 6 to 5. It was Lawrenceville's first appearance in Philadelphia, and they made a very good impression, especially in view of the fact that they were somewhat outweighed by their opponents.

"Germany" Schultz, the Michigan center, stacked up against Borg of Nebraska and played rings around the "All-Western" center. The much-touted Taylor, the big negro guard, could do nothing against Michigan's defense. The biggest gain he made was four yards. On the other hand, Curtis carried along almost the whole Nebraska team on his back for from five to 15 yards. Tom Hammond could not be stopped. Longman, Rhetschild, Weeks and Graham also made fine gains, while Capt. Norcross' quarterback runs were the feature of the day. In the opinion of the Michigan rooters Nebraska is either very much overrated or Michigan is exceptionally strong.

Eckersall's feat of drop kicking the goal for Chicago that beat Wisconsin, winning one of the grandest contests of western football history, was attended by scenes of wild enthusiasm such as seldom have been witnessed. Kicking from the 20-yard lines, Eckersall sent the ball go squarely over the goal posts that everyone could see it was good. In straight football Wisconsin gained more than five yards to Chicago's one, and one Eckersall was all that prevented the Cardinals from scoring more than once. Vanderbloem, playing with a mask on his face, lived up to every reputation he ever had.

In the finest game of football seen at Notre Dame this year, Wabash defeated Notre Dame 5 to 0. The visitors won the game on straight football, and made their only touchdown in the first half. They got the ball on their own 30-yard line, and by bucking Notre Dame's left side went over for a touchdown. The wagonmakers had the ball within a foot of Wabash's goal in the second half, but the husky visitors made a desperate stand and forced Notre Dame back.

BOWLING GAME IN FULL SWING

Liberty Valley League Has Successfully Passed Its Third Week of Season.

LATEST FROM THE ROLLERS

The Liberty Valley league has just completed its third week. On Monday the Schenleys took three easy games from the Highlands, the winners having all 800 scores, while the losers had two in the 600 and one in the 700 mark. On Tuesday the Kenwoods took the whole three from the No-Names. Chimney McVay of the winners did the best work. On Thursday night another clean sweep was made in the league by Hillside taking all from the Meadows. No good scores were made in this match, although Capt. Fegley's boys played away below their form. The last match of the week, played on Friday night, had some excellent bowling scattered through the three games. Shadyside took the odd game from the Centrals. In the first game the champions totaled 976, the highest team total ever registered in the league, and also the highest team total made on the Penn avenue alleys. The champions also made their lowest score of the season, when they got 800 flat in the second game. In this match the following 200 scores were made: F. Besselman, 248; Diebold, 222; Brennan, 224, and Philippi, 204. The standing of the clubs is as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.		W.	L.	Pct.
Shadyside	7	3	.778	No-Name	5	4	.556
Kenwood	6	3	.667	Meadow	3	6	.333
Schenley	6	3	.667	Central	2	7	.222
Hillside	6	3	.667	Highland	1	8	.111

The schedule for this week is: Monday, No-name vs. Highland; Tuesday, Central vs. Hillside; Thursday, Shadyside vs. Meadow; Friday, Schenley vs. Kenwood.

The high team score of the league is 976, made by Shadyside. High individual score for one game is 243, made by Whippo of the Hillsides and F. Besselman of the Shadysides. High individual average for three games is 204 2-3 by F. Besselman.

The St. Augustine two-man team league closed its season last week. Ten teams were members and they finished as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.

Denied Right to Purdue Insignia.

LAFAYETTE, IND., Oct. 22.—(Special.)—Because he played baseball against a team of women, Gerald Venneman, the crack quartermiler of the Purdue track team, was denied the right to wear the college monogram after a stormy discussion of his case by the Purdue Athletic association. The association adopted the report of the insignia board, giving letters to the following: Track men, Thomas, Verner, Rutledge, Sage, Glover and Congdon; baseball, Cook, Gastle, Bird, Keefe, Palmer, Witt, Miles, Holler, Rodenbeck, Gillan, Penick, Leslie, Zimmerman and Brown.

Britt-Nelson Fight In Pittsburgh.

The sporting writers of the city were last night invited to witness an exhibition of the moving pictures of the Britt-Nelson fight. The exhibition was simply marvelous and the best ever seen in Pittsburgh. No sport, not a man interested in either the Favorite Son or the Dane, should miss it. Britt was the aggressor up to the very last round. The exhibition will begin at Old City hall this afternoon.

Must Do Without Wall Decoration.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Oct. 22.—(Special.)—William D. Harris and Henry G. Lewis, Yale seniors, living in Vanderbilt Hall, were arrested last night. Harris is charged with taking a store sign, while Lewis is accused of having struck an officer in attempting to prevent the arrest of Harris. Both will have hearings tomorrow.

CHARLIE DUFFY OF PITTSBURGH COLLEGE

Duffy is halfback and captain of the Pittsburgh college sophomore football team, the only big eleven at the Bluff institution. He plays first base on the nine and is a clever all-round athlete. He is one of the original members of the interscholastic baseball team, which last season became the Pittsburgh Collegians. He is very popular.

ALLEGHENY GAVE W. & J. SURPRISE

Coach Piekarski Fears Georgetown and Will Begin Secret Practice Today.

CAPT. SUTTER IS INJURED

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, PA., Oct. 22.—The two disappointing features of the game yesterday between Washington and Jefferson and Allegheny college at Meadville were the scoring of the Allegheny players on Wash.-Jeff. and the serious injury of Capt. Sutter of the W. and J. eleven. Followers of the Red and Black could hardly believe it last night when they learned that Allegheny had crossed the Wash.-Jeff. goal line. Allegheny had been beaten by both Westminster and Geneva, and Washington and Jefferson had in turn easily beaten these two colleges.

Coach Piekarski refused to say much regarding the game except that the playing of W. and J. was "rotten" in the first half. He also stated that a few other things at Meadville were "rotten," including the officials and the crowd. "We can attribute the fact that our goal line was crossed," said the W. and J. coach today, "to the fact that the team had no rest after taking a somewhat tiresome journey and because the players held the opposing eleven too cheaply."

Sutter's injury, coming at this time, has caused considerable anxiety in the local football camp. The big center will not be able to play for a week, in all probability, and may not be allowed to enter the contest against Georgetown university next Saturday afternoon at Friendship park, Pittsburgh. Sutter had his ankle badly injured in a scrimmage yesterday, and cannot walk on the injured member today. Next Saturday's battle with Georgetown is counted upon to prove one of the hardest on the local schedule. It will be the first appearance of the eastern team in this part of the country, and an enormous crowd is looked for. There is some dissatisfaction here because the contest was not billed for Washington, but the local supporters of the team will supply a big contingent to this game.

Coach Piekarski stated tonight that he would institute secret practice at College field tomorrow evening and that no one would be allowed to watch the varsity men at work for several days. This will be the first secret work of the season here and means that the coach is determined to as nearly perf

BIG INCREASE IN GERMAN TARIFF

New Schedules Will Be Subject for Negotiations With the United States.

AFFECTS ARTICLES OF FOOD

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—A statement of the German customs tariff, comparing the rates of import duty levied in Germany under the old and the new customs tariffs, respectively, was given out today by the department of commerce and labor. A table has been compiled expressing the difference between the old and new rates ad valorem terms being based on the German estimates of the import value of the articles in 1903, the latest year for which figures are available.

The estimates as to what percentage ad valorem the new general and conventional rates will constitute can only be approximately correct at best. If prices of commodities should not change greatly, as compared with those prevailing in 1903, the estimates of what the new ad valorem rates will amount to will be fairly accurate, otherwise they will not. On corn the rate at present charged is 20 marks per 100 kilos, and that to be charged under the new general tariff 36 marks, an increase of 80 per cent.

Among the products constituting the most important items in the export trade of the United States with Germany, the highest ad valorem rate of duty affects mineral oils, being 71 per cent ad valorem on illumination and 72 per cent on lubricating oils. The specific rate on lubricating oil has been increased 66 per cent in the new general tariff and left unchanged in the conventional tariff.

The duty on tobacco is 57 per cent ad valorem and has not been changed in either of the new tariffs. A series of notable increases affects agricultural products. Thus rye, the duty on which until now constituted the highest ad valorem rate, is 35 per cent, is advanced to about 70 per cent ad valorem under the new general tariff and 43 per cent under the conventional.

The specific duty on wheat is advanced 114 per cent; on wheat flour, 157 per cent; corn, 212 per cent; dried fruit, 150 per cent, and fresh oranges 200 per cent. The conventional tariffs are somewhat lower. Thus, while oranges coming from favored nations will be subject to a duty of 24 per cent ad valorem, those imported from other countries will have to pay about 80 per cent ad valorem.

The rates on provisions also have been advanced. The specific rate on bacon is advanced 88 per cent; pork, 176 per cent; beef, 300 per cent; the conventional tariffs being somewhat lower.

As regard manufactures the old rates are for the most part moderate. The duty on sewing machines, representing the highest ad valorem rate under the existing tariff among important articles of export from this country, viz.: 22 per cent is raised 48 per cent, i. e., to about 342 per cent ad valorem under the new general tariff. No provision having been made under the conventional agricultural machinery, which pays on the average about 4 per cent ad valorem, will be subject to rates from 20 per cent to 88 per cent higher. The rates of duty on steam engines and motors of all kinds which were hitherto the same as that on agricultural machinery and averaged 4 per cent ad valorem are advanced all the way from 40 per cent to 1,150 per cent. Motive machinery coming from countries not enjoying the conventional rates will be subject to duties as high as 50 per cent ad valorem while that coming from favored nations will pay duties ranging from 5½ per cent to 35 per cent ad valorem.

Duties on boots and shoes are increased from 70 to 177 per cent, the ad valorem increase being from 8 to 15 per cent. On cottonseed oil the advance is about 25 per cent.

These new tariffs will be the subject of serious negotiations between this country and Germany and the matter probably will be taken up soon after the return of Ambassador Von Steck Sternburg.

BELGIUM PREPARING NATIONAL DEFENSE

Twenty-One Millions Will Be Spent on New Advanced Line of Fortifications.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

BRUSSELS, Oct. 22.—The autumn season of parliament which opened Wednesday night last promises to be an eventful one. The question of fortifying Antwerp and making that city practically impregnable against a national attack is the first important matter to be considered. The plan of the government for a new advanced line of fortifications will entail an expenditure of $21,600,000, and in conjuction with the building of these fortification it is proposed to enlarge the Antwerp docks to about twice their present size. The government bill probably will be passed notwithstanding the opposition to the heavy expenses involved.

The question of the definite status of the Kongo Independent state also will be considered. The impression prevails in diplomatic circles that the governments of Great Britain and Germany wish to terminate the reign of King Leopold as absolute sovereign of the Kongo Independent state and to oblige Belgium to definitely annex the state.

It is probable that if asked to take final action both houses of parliament will give substantial majorities to the annexation of the Kongo as an integral part of the kingdom of Belgium.

SEEKS SOLACE IN DEATH.

Fearing He Had Worn Out His Welcome, Anthony Mann Tries to Commit Suicide.

Anthony Mann, who for some time had been cared for at the Home of the Little Sisters of the Poor, imagined that he had worn out his welcome. Several times while in conversation with the sisters he had asked with considerable anxiety if they were not getting tired of him. He was always reassured by the sisters, but apparently was not satisfied. Yesterday morning when he did not come down stairs one of the sisters went to his room and found him in bed covered with blood. He had long gashes on each side of his abdomen and was very weak from loss of blood. He had brooded so much over his imaginary troubles that he sought solace in death.

Mann was weak-minded and was about 60 years old. He inflicted the wounds on himself with a penknife, but the blade was so small that the intestines were not penetrated. Owing to his advanced age and his generally weak physical condition, however, the physicians fear that the loss of blood will cause his death.

Melody Is Not Appreciated.

J. B. Diebacher of Troy Hill is at Allegheny Central station awaiting a hearing this morning. He was arrested early yesterday morning on Lowrie street. He and a number of others who got away were singing at the top of their voices, it is alleged, greatly to the annoyance of the neighborhood. It is claimed such annoyance has been going on up there every Saturday night for months past.

The Greene Gold-Silver Company by authority of a resolution of its board of directors adopted October 14, offers for sale at par, namely, $10 a share, 100,000 shares of its treasury stock. Complete information regarding the company's property, including maps, prospectus reports, may be obtained at its office, 24 Broad street, New York.

BACHELOR LORD IS A FIRST PRIZE

London Real Estate Rise Makes Young de Walden Finest European Catch.

OUTBID KING FOR RACE HORSE

(Special Letter to The Gazette.)

LONDON, Oct. 15.—There was rather a special interest about the recent acquisition of "Audley End," the historic and splendid Tudor mansion in Essex, by Lord Howard de Walden. It led one to speculate as to whether an American girl might not eventually succeed in marrying this nobleman who, though he is only 25, and has been rarely mentioned in the newspapers, has spent the last few years of his life in dodging attempts to lure him into matrimony. For by thus providing himself with a country seat worthy to rank with the London place which he owns in Belgrave square, the youthful peer has done the last thing necessary to make himself pre-eminently the greatest "catch" in the world to-day. And isn't it acknowledged that most of the other greatly-desired bachelors of recent years have finally capitulated to the fair daughters of the Stars and Stripes?

To exaggerate the attractions of Lord Howard de Walden, considered from a matrimonial standpoint, would be rather difficult. For besides possessing good looks, a historic ancestry, and that rare thing in a youthful member of the British peerage, an absolutely clean record, this young nobleman has become one of the richest men in all Europe. He owns huge estates in Nottinghamshire and Ayrshire and it is now estimated that he owns more valuable land in London than the young duke of Westminster, who always has been held to be the greatest of London landlords, and as such has been the subject of endless columns of gossip.

Lord Howard de Walden's recently acquired pre-eminence is due partly to the fact that his London possessions include many acres in the Hampstead district, which is getting more and more popular as a place of residence; but it is the square mile of real estate that he owns in the Marylebone district that can be described as a veritable Eldorado. Besides aristocratic Cavendish square with its ducal mansions, this estate includes Harley street, where all the most eminent and fashionable London doctors have their abiding places, and a dozen more thoroughfares whose names mean almost as much in this country. From this property alone the young bachelor's income is between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000 a year. What his total income is it would be rash to guess—and he himself probably would be the last to try to guess.

A Few Other Qualifications.

Besides being the eighth Baron Howard de Walden, this youthful peer is Baron Seaford. Moreover, he is "superior" of the Scotch town of Kilmarnock, a large slice of which is included in his Ayrshire estate, this title being equivalent to that of lord of the manor in England. He is an ex-lieutenant of the swagger Tenth regiment of Hussars, with whom he went to the South African war. He is one of the most prominent breeders of race horses in this country. His steam yacht, the Highwayman, is one of the finest afloat. Perhaps, however, apart from his vast wealth, Howard de Walden is most interesting as a "catch" on account of the two superb mansions of which he is now the proprietor.

The first of these, Seaford house, in Belgrave square, now disputes with Stafford house, the magnificent residence of the duke and duchess of Sutherland, the honor of being the finest private residence in London. It was bought by Howard de Walden in 1900, or about six months after the unexpectedly sudden death of his father changed the young man, who had barely attained his majority, from plain Thomas Evelyn Ellis, Esq., to the holder of two baronies and one of the richest noblemen in Europe. The mansion was then Sefton house, and had previously been one of the best-known, as well as one of the largest, of London mansions. Its owner, the countess of Sefton, held a salon that was famous for its brilliance. When, however, her only son came to grief in a steeplechase and became an invalid for life, the countess retired into the country to be with him, and for several years her great house remained closed.

When Lord Howard de Walden bought Seaford house, as he renamed it, he found it full of mouldy leather chairs and other relics of early Victorian tastelessness, but in less than five months he had transformed it in a way that Monte Cristo himself might have envied. Now the feature of the place is its superb marble staircase. The stone used in its construction tones from palest sea-green to deepest emerald, and was brought from South Africa at great expense. The columns of the staircase are of Mexican alabaster. The painted ceilings of Seaford house are models of artistic decoration, while the furniture is entirely French. Even the smallest fittings of the mansion are unique in their way, Lord Howard de Walden's study table, for instance, being ornamented with feminine figures of solid silver, each bearing a real seashell, through which electric lights throw a soft radiance. The house was opened for the first time during coronation year, when its beauty was the talk of the town. This house-warming, however, like many such gatherings which come off from time to time during the London season, was marred by the presence of crowds of people who had not been honored with invitations. They surged up the magnificent staircase, they invaded every room in the house, and devoured so much food that the story went around that two great London caterers had to come to the rescue and send down all the provisions they had in stock.

Perhaps the oddest thing about "Audley End," Howard de Walden's stately new country seat, which he leases from Lord Braybrooke, is the fact that the guests he entertains there have to go down stairs instedd of upstairs, to bed! This is accounted for by the fact that in this old Tudor mansion the state apartments are on the second floor, while the bedrooms are on the ground floor. The grounds are vast, and to look after them and the flowerbeds, Howard de Walden employes 50 gardeners, 20 of whom confine their attention to the blooms and vegetables which he raises under glass. There was an odd appropriateness about the young peer's action in leasing "Audley End," for it not only stands near Saffron Walden, the town from which his title is derived, but formerly belonged to his ancestors. The chief of these was Sir Thomas Audley, who received the manor from Henry VIII. and straightway built upon it.

The present mansion, however, which is one of the largest Tudor residences in this country, was erected in the eighteenth century by the first lord, Lord Howard de Walden. Pepys was entertained at "Audley End" and there is a note in his diary as to the excellence of the wines he imbibed there. The picture gallery, too, is famous. Oddly enough, however, the place which has been made luxuriously modern in every other respect has one most remarkable defect which as yet no steps have been taken to remedy. It contains neither gas nor electricity, and when its young owner entertains the mansion has to be lighted by means of 150 oil lamps!

With two such establishments, not to mention a few millions, at her command, the future Lady Howard de Walden ought to be fairly contented. In addition, however, she will probably one day come into about the finest collection of jewellry in this country. This is now the property of Howard de Walden's mother who is Lady Ludlow by her second marriage, and is one of the handsomest women in the land. She it is who entertains for him whenever there is a big party at either Seaford House or Audley End, and a most charming chatelaine she makes. Her ladyship, who was Blanche Holden before she married the late Lord Howard de Walden, did not have an especially happy time with that nobleman, in fact she secured a legal separation from him immediately after their son was born. But she and the present Howard de Walden are devoted to each other, and before her marriage to Lord Ludlow, two years ago, they used to be seen continually dining or lunching together at the best restaurants, where strangers generally took them for brother and sister.

The young bachelor peer is about the most baffling proposition with which the match-making mamas and chaperones on this side of the water have had to deal, and perhaps this is partly due to the intention which he has so often expressed of waiting until he found a woman just like his mother before he married. In society, however, it is affirmed that Lady Ludlow herself will choose her son's bride. With the possible exception of the duchess of Portland, no English peeress can vie with Lady Ludlow, so far as jewels are concerned. Most of her priceless collection of gems came to her when she married her first husband. Her emeralds are of really barbaric splendor and she possesses sufficient to cover an entire corsage. In fact, when her engagement to Lord Ludlow was announced the former Lady Howard de Walden begged her friends on no acount to send her jewels, as she "simply did not know what to do with those she already possessed." And it goes without saying that these will pass on to her daughter-in-law, whoever she may be.

King Is Down on Him.

On one thing, however, it will not be safe for the future bride of this youthful peer to count—unless present conditions undergo a change—and that is any particular royal favor. King Edward VII. is a wee bit "sore" on young Howard de Walden, for about the first thing that youthful heir did after inheriting his fortune was to euchre the king out of some race horses his majesty particularly wanted. De Walden was anxious to set up a racing stable and when the stud of the late Col. McCalmont was offered for sale, he decided to buy some of the best animals. The dead sportsman and the king had been good friends, and it great possessions came to him through his grandmother, and formed part of the famous "Portland estate," to which one Druce, of Australia, laid claim several years ago. This lady was one of the four daughters of the fourth duke of Portland, to whom his Middlesex estate was entailed. She became Lady Howard de Walden, and, surviving all her sisters, she entered into possession of the great tract of London real estate which now commands so gigantic a rental. Her son survived her death by only a few is probable that had not McCalmont died suddenly he would have made over nearly all his stud, which included some of the best horseflesh in England, to his majesty, rather than had it auctioned off. As it was, though the king was personally represented among the bidders, the millionaire de Walden secured the pick of the horses, and for that act of lese majeste his sovereign has never forgiven him.

Most of Lord Howard de Walden's months, and it was just as he was about to board the ship on his way to South Africa with his regiment that the present Lord Howard de Walden, then barely 21, learned of his huge inheritance. Up to that time his life had been uneventful enough. Educated, to begin with, at a private school, he went to Eton and then passed through Sandhurst Military academy, when he got his commission in the Hussars.

Having learned of his father's death and his altered circumstances, Howard de Walden promptly got the permission of the military authorities to delay his departure for the Cape, and returned to London to enter into possession of his estate. An energetic young man, with a real genius for administration, it took de Walden just five weeks to settle everything, when he was off for South Africa again as a passenger on a regular liner. But those five weeks in London had constituted a new experience for him in more than one way, and his second departure for the Cape was the signal for the beginning of a pursuit which never has slackened, and won't, probably, until he has actually led a bride to the altar. For not only had the new party been courted openly wherever he showed his face in Mayfair, but those of his feminine pursuers who did not turn up, more or less plausibly, on the steamer that took him to the Cape, were on hand later in the capacity of amateur nurses!

Side-Stepping Matrimony.

Speaking literally, it is probable that no great match of recent years has been so persistently angled for as Lord Howard de Walden during the last four years. And on the face of it one would pick him out as the most likely sort of victim, for with women he is the soul of gallantry. But strictly platonic friendships seem to be this young man's strong point and he has had a lot of them, at least one of which seemed certain to end in matrimony. This was with the beautiful Pamela Plowden, who has since become Lady Lytton. Miss Plowden was chaperoned in turn by three or four of the smartest women in society, including Lady Granby and Mrs. Asquith, was for three or four seasons one of the reigning beauties, and had the unique reputation of dressing on less than $400 a year. Mayfair was certain that she would be Lady Howard de Walden, and was grievously disappointed to find itself mistaken.

Later on, it was expected that de Walden would engage himself to Lady Marjorie Greville, who has since married Viscount Helmsley. A daughter of the countess of Warwick, she was naturally one of the most interesting debutantes of her year, and at the series of dances which Lady Warwick gave at Brooke House, Lord Howard de Walden invariably put in an appearance. The gossips gossiped, but that was all that ever came of it. But if the richest bachelor nobleman in England has steered clear of matrimony, thus far, he has also avoided other entanglements. If an American girl finally "bags" him, she will have no one to "square" and no threatened breach of promise suit to buy off.

Personally, Howard de Walden is tall, fair and rather boyish-looking, and like many young aristocrats in this country affects a monocle. He dresses quietly, but well, and is rather partial to fancy waistcoats. This fact having become known to his feminine acquaintances he has almost as many wrought by their fair fingers as his mother has jewels. Sometimes when he gets tired to death of being hunted himself, milord goes off to East Africa in quest of big game. He does a lot of motoring, too, almost invariably driving his own car, and last year he took a special interest in motor-boat racing.

In the events at Monaco he used a craft of this kind made from his own designs. His turf operations have been uncommonly successful. His stables at Newmarket are among the most perfectly equipped in the country, and few British horse owners are more popular with jockeys. In his leisure time the young nobleman breeds prize partridges in his coverts at Audley End.

But his passion is fencing. He is reputedly the best amateur swordsman in England and has one of the finest collections of rapiers in Europe, half of these blades being on exhibition at Seaford house and half at Audley End, where there is also a magnificent show of armour. For several years, Howard de Walden had daily lessons in fencing with Bertrand, one of the best exponents of the art in London, and one of his last entertainments at Seaford house took the form of a display of swordsmanship, in which the host himself figured, engaging with sword and foil some of the masters of the art in France, whom he invited over especially for the occasion.

It will be gathered that whatever this young nobleman attempts to do he does systematically. He carries out this rule, too, in the management of his vast estate. Of course, it is impossible for him to look after all the details connected with it in person, but he has them at his fingers' ends and few days pass without finding him at his estate offices in Queen Anne street, Cavendish square, in deep consultation with his steward. Taken all together, he is about as level-headed a young fellow as one could meet in a day's march, and it will be a lucky girl, American or otherwise, who gets him and his broad acres and his big rent roll.

PRESIDENT OF FRANCE ON A VISIT TO SPAIN

Chief Executive of Republic Will Be Received by King Alfonso Today.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

PARIS, Oct. 23.—President Loubet left Paris for Madrid this morning, accompanied by Premier Rouvier, to return the visit to France of King Alfonso. The departure from the Orleans station was made the occasion of an enthusiastic demonstration by enormous crowds. On the platform was a brilliant assemblage of officials, including all the members of the cabinet or their representatives, the presidents of the senate and the chamber of deputies, and distinguished military officers, as well as many Spanish residents of Paris. The presidential train left amid sustained cheering and a salute by a guard of honor.

At all the stations on the way to the frontier there were crowds and provincial authorities who greeted the president with intermingled cheers for France and Spain. There was an official reception at the frontier town of Irun, where a special mission on behalf of King Alfonso met and welcomed the president.

The president will continue his journey through the night and will arrive at the Escurial at noon tomorrow, where he will place a wreath on the grave of King Alfonso XII. He will then proceed to the capital, where he will be received at the railway station by King Alfonso.

TURKEY AGAIN PROTESTS AGAINST INTERFERENCE

Clash Between Powers and Porte Seems Imminent Over Financial Control of Macedonia.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 22.—The porte has addressed a note to Baron Calice, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador, protesting against the presence at Uskub of the financial commissioners of the powers and demanding the cessation of interference by the powers in the internal affairs of Turkey.

Replying to a collective note presented by the six embassies at Constantinople, September 26, which said that the decision of the powers to assume international control of the finances of Macedonia was unalterable, the Turkish government reiterated what it regarded as objections to the scheme. Another collective note was presented September 7, when the powers proceeded to Uskub.

VIENNA, Oct. 22.—It is reported here that the powers intend to present a joint ultimatum to the Turkish government on account of its resistance to their financial control of Macedonia, and that if the ultimatum should be disregarded the powers will make a naval determination.

Mr. Leishman Makes Protest.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 22.—Mr. Leishman, the American minister, has addressed a note to the Porte protesting against the violation involved in the retrial of Ghirkis Vartanian of the porte's assurance that judicial proceedings would be suspended, pending the settlement of the questions of principle arising from Vartanian's claim to American protection.

BIG LOAN SEEMS ASSURED.

Negotiations by Russia for the Borrowing of $300,000,000 Are Proceeding Harmoniously.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 22.—Negotiations for the floating of a new Russian loan are not expected to be completed before the end of a week. The representatives of the French, American, English and German groups of bankers have not yet arranged the bases of participation, and some delay is being caused by the illness of one of the French representatives. Nevertheless the negotiations are reported to be proceeding harmoniously and the flotation of a large international loan approximating $300,000,000, seems to be assured.

No definite information can be obtained as to the terms of issue or the price of the bonds, but it is stated that the bonds will be issued in series for separate listing on the exchanges of the respective countries. The French group is said to be insistent on this point in order to prevent speculation in the bonds by the other groups on the Paris bourse.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES HELD THROUGHOUT RUSSIA

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 22.—Services of thanksgiving for the conclusion of peace were held today in all churches throughout the empire and festal masses were celebrated. The emperor's rescript announcing peace was read to the court, and the celebration held in the Kazan cathedral in St. Petersburg was attended by the ministers and other high functionaries.

American Warship at Naples.

NAPLES, Oct. 22.—The United States cruiser Minneapolis, commanded by Capt. James M. Miller, arrived here today and will probably remain for a week. Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, superintendent of the naval observatory at Washington, who is visiting Pisa and Florence, is expected to arrive here tomorrow.

ONLY A SUGGESTION.

But It Has Proved of Interest and Value to Thousands.

Common sense would suggest that if one wishes to become fleshy and plump it can only result from the food we eat and digest and that food should be albuminous or flesh forming food, like eggs, beefsteak and cereals; in other words the kinds of food that make flesh are the foods which form the greater part of our daily bills of fare.

But the trouble is that while we eat enough and generally too much, the stomach, from abuse and overwork, does not properly digest and assimilate it, which is the reason so many people remain thin and under weight; the digestive organs do not completely digest the food-forming beefsteak and eggs and similar wholesome food.

There are thousands of such who are really confirmed dyspeptics, although they may have no particular pain or inconvenience from their stomachs.

If such persons would lay their prejudices aside and make a regular practice of taking, after each meal, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets the food would be quickly and thoroughly digested, because these tablets contain the natural peptones and diastase which every weak stomach lacks, and by supplying this want the stomach is soon enabled to reach its natural tone and vigor.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest every form of flesh forming food, meat, eggs, bread and potatoes, and this is the reason they so quickly build up, strengthen and invigorate thin, dyspeptic men, women and children.

Invalids and children, even the most delicate, use them with marked benefit as they contain no strong, irritating drugs, no cathartic nor any harmful ingredient.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most successful and most widely known of any remedy for stomach troubles because it is the most reasonable and scientific of modern medicines.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by every druggist in the United States and Canada as well as in Great Britain, at 50 cents for complete treatment.

Nothing further is required to cure any stomach trouble or to make thin, nervous, dyspeptic people strong, plump and well.

PSYCHOLOGY OF THE MARKET IS AN UNCERTAIN SCIENCE

Incidents of Identical Character Have Precisely Opposite Effects on Wall Street on Different Occasions—Impossible to Forecast Results.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—It is impossible to foretell how any single event will influence the speculative mind. The psychology of the markets works peculiarly. Instances could be multiplied at length, but they are not necessary. Wall street has seen prices made to advance following the assassination of a president; it has seen them collapse on the vaporings of a mountebank. Nor does there appear to be any fixed rule that governs such affairs. An incident of precisely the same character which upon one occasion had a depressing influence, has on another been void of such influence, or worked in contrary manner.

The psychology of a movement such as that which developed in the specialties in the closing days of last week is not difficult to determine. There had been specific mention, from an authoritative quarter, of "the prevailing high level of prices." Unquestionably to many persons, this conveyed the idea that a speculative movement in the high-priced issues was inadvisable. Thereupon the pool and cliques bent their energies toward stimulating the issues selling at smaller figures.

Without doubt there is merit in many of the industrial shares. Some of them may be selling under a fair valuation, based upon earnings and future prospects. The argument as to the justification of a movement which more nearly equalizes prices of one division of a market than another, is entitled to consideration. The danger of such a movement is in its indiscriminate character. Shares, good, bad and indifferent, move along together, and are usually carried to prices far in excess of any value, present or prospective.

It is scarcely necessary to say that stocks are not cheap. Moreover, stocks are never of necessity cheap, because some specific issue sells at a few cents or a few dollars a share. The theory of eliminating the inequalities in a market is all very well, provided the equalizing process is conducted on a basis of values which takes into consideration capital, earnings, condition of plant, prospect of development, marketability in case of collapse, availability as collateral for loans to borrow on and the like. It is a fool's argument, on the other hand, to hold that because a certain group of established properties have been raised to unprecedented prices that everything good, bad and indifferent in the list should be marked up accordingly. The result of this latter theory will assuredly be similar to the fabled bullfrog in the rushes, which sought to inflate itself to the size of the ox. It swallowed a great deal of air in the attempt and burst asunder.

Coincident with this movement among the speculators in the market a movement which has raised some non-dividend paying properties to $50, $60, $70, even approximating $80 a share, comes a report that the public is coming in. If such is the case then it is just as well to say that it ought to provide itself with a long pocketbook and fortify itself with patience. The pocketbook to take up the stock for cash if necessary, and the patience to await through the months and years of development for the full realization of the glowing stock jobbing promises of what some of these corporations are going to do. Such comments, of course, do not in the least apply to persons impressed solely by the gambling side of the proposition, and that assuredly appeals to many. But it ought to be made clear to others that there is no assurance of permanency to a speculative movement or to the level of prices that may be reached in these indiscriminate movements. There never yet was the promise of a great possible gain without concealed somewhere in the transaction the possibility of an equally great compensating loss.

In a general way the late demonstration in the security market last week, which moved for the most part along the line of the least desirable securities, and bids fair to continue on these lines until checked, was based upon some improving tendencies in the money market. Somewhat easier rates prevailed here, and reports of similar character came from London and Berlin. But there is no assurance that this tendency marks a permanent change in this market. This, however, will be shortly determined in the course of the November interest and dividend disbursements, the preparations for which are near at hand. There is more reason for the belief that the present easing of the money market has been influenced more largely than by anything else to the loaning in the call market of some $40,000,000 of Japanese money, the proceeds of the last 4½ per cent loan. Though nothing definite has been ascertained as to the length of time this fund will remain at Wall street's disposal, it is not wholly wise to overlook the fact that it is ear-marked, and that the offerings on call now, and easing rates, does not, necessarily insure that rates will continue relaxed when the money is in Japanese hands, or withdrawn from its present uses.

What extravagance and speculation in staple commodities is doing for us is rather clearly indicated in the government trade statement for September, and the figures therein contain disclosed clearly enough why, with great harvests, we cannot command the foreign exchanges. There is an apparent trade balance on merchandise and staple shipments of $220,026,843. Actually, in consequence of the money we have borrowed abroad, the foreign loans we have floated and the huge sums deported by tourists and remitted to absentee Americans, the chances are that there is a debit balance against us.

The experiment of trying to start the speculative market anew along the lines of the poorer stocks of the list at this time will be watched with interest. Not only does it start in the face of warnings from huge authorities, and at a high level of prices for the whole list, good, bad and indifferent alike, but also with full knowledge of the fact that the sum total of cash reserves against liabilities of all the institutions in New York is not much above 12 per cent, and with the self-evident fact staring the speculator in the face that the international exchanges are working against the country, that exports are not increasing in proportion to imports, that there is $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 of money ear-marked for Japan, that an enormous Russian loan, with an American participation, is impending, and that a further Japanese loan will follow hard upon its heels. If the movement can be long sustained it will be remarkable.

National Fireproofing Company Secures a Number of Important Contracts in England.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The National Fireproofing Company of Pittsburgh has secured a number of important contracts for the fireproofing of theaters, warehouses and other large buildings to be constructed in London, England.

The carrying out of the work will mark the first introduction of merican terra cotta fireproofing methods in Europe.

Do Not Believe He Was Drunk.

Alfred Dumer of East Robinson street, Allegheny, is in the North Side Central station. He was arrested late Saturday night on Federal street on complaint of some men who live down the Ft. Wayne road. They said Dumer was pretending to be very drunk and at the same time was trying to pick their pockets.

Mrs. Keally Has a Grievance.

John Keally of Twenty-third street was fined $25 by Magistrate Moke yesterday morning. His wife said he fought with her and would not support her.

CHANGES IN WEATHER AFFECT THE MARKETS

New Quotations Made in the Produce Market During the Day.

The rain which followed the few days of real warm weather, and now the cold spell, have affected the local markets to a great extent. While there has been no great change in prices, the receipts have been low and sales just ordinary.

Tokay grapes in crates took a drop Saturday and both choice and fancy apples went up. Beans are higher, having taken a jump of from 25 to 50 cents. Onions advanced 5 cents during the day.

Jobbers raised the price on potatoes 5 cents, and also on apples. Fancy chestnuts can now be bought for 8 to 10 cents.

There is certain to be an increase in the price of butter by Monday. Live and dressed poultry had their usual heavy Saturday sale.

A few more frosts and the commission merchants will be doing a much heavier business, as the green goods of the farmer will then be out of the market.

LONDON MARKET GOES UPWARD WITH A RUSH

Sudden Stoppage in Selling Is Followed by Equally Sudden Buying Movement.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]
(Copyright, 1905, by New York Herald Co.)

LONDON, Oct. 22.—To the surprise of nearly everybody in the city a complete change came over the aspect of affairs in the markets yesterday. On Thursday liquidations in Americans and kaffirs was in progress as persistently as ever, and except in the home railway section, depression was reigning supreme. But yesterday there took place a sudden stoppage in selling and an equally sudden rush to buy, which of course carried the price up with a run. Even kaffirs shook off their gloom and closed with an almost cheerful appearance.

Though the most pronounced features were Canadian Pacific and Hudson Bays, this change in the general sentiment was attributed mainly to the finish of liquidation on the one hand and on the other to easier monetary conditions, but even though the markets executed such a complete "volte face" yesterday, cautious operators do not think much of it because they consider that, owing mainly to the fear of dear money here, in New York and Berlin, and to the preparations for the coming Russian loan it is improbable there can be a healthy gain.

The firmest market of the week was to be found in home rails, purchases having been encouraged by the favorable trade reports, more particularly in reference to iron and steel and shipbuilding, and by the generally satisfactory traffics.

The market in Americans, here as in New York, has been entirely professional, and even with that restriction, uncertainty and dullness has been the prevailing notes. A strong tip to buy American rails was passed around yesterday and though as the day wore on the advice seemed to be justified it was received with a good deal of incredulity.

In regard to the money market any anxiety as to what course the bank directors would follow on Thursday was set at rest by the announcement that the 4 per cent rate was to be maintained. There is still anxiety, however, as to the step it may be necessary to take in the near future, for, although the position of the bank has improved, it is still far from strong, especially as another immense load of gold will have to be transferred to the credit of the Indian government in the course of the next few weeks, but a feeling of satisfaction has prevailed here that the pressure for money in New York is relaxing.

Money rates are harder now than they were last week. Loans for the week are now commanding fully 2¾ per cent; discounts have also hardened, 4 per cent being the general quotation for the best three months' bills.

In the Oil Fields

So far as developments in the fields were concerned they in no way differed from what has been experienced for so many successive weeks and months. The finding of large producers seldom occur, and, if any, usually in the old-defined districts, and do not open up any new territory. New territory, capable of furnishing average producers, is what is needed to give increased activity to field work. The recent advances in the market, with the indications for a still greater appreciation, has furnished the incentive for starting the drill with new energy.

In nearly all districts, deep sand excepted, there is new work starting or contemplated. Before the market declined, early in the year, there was a fair amount of drilling in these districts, but as the market declined till it reached a low point, operators cut down development work to almost nothing and piled up their tools to await more prosperous conditions. Under present market conditions shallow sand territory can be operated at a profit, even though nothing better than small pumpers can be hoped for in any district.

In the deep sand districts there is scarcely a noticeable increase in drilling operations. New work is contemplated should the market continue to advance. How much additional advance will be needed to make it an object to begin a vigorous campaign in the deep sand districts is a matter of individual opinion. As expressed by many, $2 is the minimum.

A higher market will no doubt cause a marked increase in development work, but as to its bringing the desired result, an increase in production, is yet to be determined. The needed increase will not come this year. Neither will it be realized next year, should the demand for high-grade crude be as great as this and no new fields forthcoming.

The inferior grades can be substituted to a degree, but the demand will still be great and promises to increase. Without an increased demand and no better prospects for increasing the production, it will be but a matter of time till the stocks have been entirely exhausted and the oil in the pipe lines all that is in reserve.

The additional 5 cents added to the credit balance market during the week brought the quotation for oil of the Pennsylvania grade up to $1.61, or 11 cents higher than at any time since the first of the year. The repeated advances in the past month and a half have added a total of 34 cents to the price of Pennsylvania crude. The inferior grades have not been advanced so rapidly, but the demand has not been so great, nor the source of supply so restricted. With the facilities for moving the middle west product almost completed, the accumulation of oil in Kansas and the territories, amounting to between 5,000,000 and 9,000,000 barrels, will go a long way toward meeting the demand for the cheaper grade of crude.

Southeastern Ohio secured the best producer of the week. It is in Keith run, in Washington county, and had an initial production of 250 barrels. This territory has been under development for some months and it opens up nothing new.

In southeastern Ohio districts the best results are now being had in the Berea grit development, east of Woodsfield, Monroe county. The wells show an average production at the start of about 50 barrels per day. The limits of the pool have not been defined. Recent completions show a northwest extension and it is in that direction that the most new work is now starting.

In the lower southwest no wells completed attracted any attention either as to size or location. The Yellow Creek district, Calhoun county, furnished fewer completions than for any week in many months past.

In the deep sand districts drilling down and shooting old wells are the features. In some instances the result is quite satisfactory. The new work starting is in old territory and the completions of no particular interest in the trade.

Large corporations often wish to convert their current obligations into time debts, so that they will not be embarrassed by sudden calls for funds. Or it may become necessary to issue bonds for construction and working capital, secured by mortgage. All trust deeds securing interest-bearing bonds should have a corporate Trustee. This Company offers its services as Trustee for the bond-holders of corporations, and guarantees efficient, unprejudiced and impartial service.

The Whitney Company has been formed for the purpose of developing the water power of the Yadkin River in North Carolina. A letter from Mr. George I. Whitney, of Messrs. Whitney & Stephenson, Pittsburgh, President of the Company, gives the following details:

Present development, 40,000 horse-power, with sufficient land (over 13,000 acres), and water rights to build an additional 50,000 horse-power plant. Within a radius of 80 miles (easily reached by electric power transmission) there are now 257 cotton mills, using about 73,000 steam horse-power, costing $35 to $50 per annum. There are also numerous other mills and furniture factories within the same radius—contracts could now be made for the entire present development of 40,000 electric horse-power at highly remunerative rates.

Gross Annual Earnings, estimated.....$630,000
Operating Expenses.....$97,000
Interest on Bonds.....270,000—367,000
Estimated Surplus.....$263,000

We quote in detail from Mr. Whitney's letter as follows:

"I do not hesitate to say that the project is sound in every particular. The Company owns an enormous and unfailing water power; the work is now more than 25% completed, and is being rapidly pushed by competent contractors, the T. A. Gillespie Company. There is a permanent constantly increasing demand for electric power at profitable prices without competition from nearby coal fields or forests, and there is no doubt that the Company will prove a highly profitable investment from its start.

"The development of this property from its inception has been in charge of the highest talent procurable in the country, and this is true of its legal and engineering departments, of the contractors who have taken charge of construction, who rank second to none in the country, and of the electrical and hydraulic builders, who will be readily recognized as of the highest class.

"As you know, there is demand for bonds of well-planned water power projects by reason of the permanence and large profits of such undertakings, as well as the inability of investors to buy desirable public utility or municipal bonds at remunerative prices. The bonds you now offer are, in my opinion, well secured, and should sell at a considerable premium in due time.

"Very truly yours, GEO. I. WHITNEY, President."

EVENTS PROVE DECEIT OF SIN

Allegheny Pastor Cites Cunliffe and Clark Cases to Illustrate His Sermon.

POINTS TO INSURANCE MEN

Citing as examples the cases of E. G. Cunliffe, T. Lee Clark and the insurance officials who have appeared so liberally in print recently, the Rev. Dr. Wallace Tharp preached to the congregation of the First Christian church, Allegheny, last evening on "The Deceitfulness of Sin." His text was, Hebrews, iii:13: "Lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin," and while he admitted, in the case of Cunliffe, that truthful and strong things might be said about corporations underpaying employes he contended that one wrong did not justify another. He said in part:

"The largest thing in the universe, except the love of God, is sin; and the most potential thing in human life, except God's love, is sin. But a mystery is sin! It escapes and defies exhaustive definition. It seems to be both an essence and an act. It is "the transgression of the law," for the Bible says so, and in this light it becomes an act; but it is more than this, for that it is an essential energy, active and ever-present, impelling to "transgression of the law," our own experience abundantly witnesseth.

Sin is as many-sided as it is strong. I shall have to do in this address, with but one of its many phases, namely, its dexterous power to deceive. Paul speaks of this power in the text I have selected.

Sane Man Cannot Sin.

A normal, sane man would not, yes, could not, deliberately descend into sin, unless by some cunning and diabolical witchery he had been blinded to its results; and the keener and more sensitive ambitions and longings of a better nature have been held in abeyance by a strong, mysterious and deluding hand.

It is my purpose to discover, if I may, the methods and processes of sin in thus deceiving men. And you will remember it has deceived, not only the weak and enfeebled of our race, but the strongest as well, and it blinded the eyes of the angels even until they rebelled against the God in whose presence they dwelt.

The whole process is illustrated in a sad and tragic case that has recently come before your very eyes—that of the deceived and now distressed Mr. Cunliffe. Let us study it. Nor shall I dwell upon what the world might term the extenuations and mitigating circumstances of Mr. Cunliffe's case. There are those who may decry and censure the company that paid him but $65 per month for his services. There may be, yes, there are some strong and truthful things that might be said concerning the wages some corporations pay their employes; but one wrong does not justify another. Besides, the horrible wrong and crime of Cashier T. Lee Clark, and of the actuaries of some insurance companies, whose possessions and emoluments were not small and compatible, leave these without even this excuse. No, sin is sin, whether in men or among angels. Men are led to sin by being deceived by it.

How Sin Deceives.

It deceives, first, by hiding the consequences. Mr. Cunliffe's exclamation after he was taken and had begun to grasp the full significance of his crime, and the keen tooth of remorse was gnawing at his soul was, "I do not know whatever made me do such a thing." It deceives by making each man believe that he will be an exception. Sin suggested to him, "You now have your opportunity, take it; others may have been caught, you will not be." He forgot all about the splendid system of detection and the cute, persistent ways of detectives. Besides, he forgot that the skeleton hand of an avenging God was pursuing him and that His invisible word had said, "Be sure your sin will find you out." And multitudinous thousands are being thus deceived every day.

Sin deceives by giving false and finer names to crimes. Sin sees to it that a "spade is not called a spade." Thieving is called "speculation," and a thief is called a "kleptomaniac." Revenge, one of the most poisonous processes that ever spoiled the human heart, is called an "appeal to the code of honor;" while "love of money," which Christ calls "covetousness and idolatry," is diplomatically named "wise economy." Thus you may take the whole dark, black list of sins, and you will find that some smooth, fine, false name has been found for every one.

Mr. Cunliffe is a thief; Mr. Clarke was a thief, and every grafter in these cities is a thief, and they should be thus denominated. Smooth terms for these crimes are but the songs of sirens.

Sin Hardens the Heart.

Sin deceives by hardening the heart and by saying to a quickened conscience, "Hush, hush, be still!" A sin, when first indulged in, sends blushes to the cheek, makes the heart jump and palpitate with unwonted activity and starts up consternation at once upon that soul-stirring oration that every sinner at some time has heard—an invitation the burden of whose message is, "You've done wrong; you've done wrong!"

God says: "After death, judgment!" Sin says: "After death, nothing." God says: "Be sure your sin will find you out." Sin says: "Be sure and you will not be found out."

The pathway of the just is as a shining light, which shineth more and more unto the perfect day. The way of the transgressor is hard. Which way should all men go? Which way is better? Quo vadis?

VERY PLEASANT READING IN THE SUNDAY GAZETTE

News, Fiction and Fun Make Combination Which Wins for Paper Many Warm Friends.

There have been issues of The Sunday Gazette where the character of the news may have been more important than that of yesterday. Possibly there have been times when some one of the feature articles was timelier or its literary garb more elegant; possibly there have been Sundays when some one of The Gazette's comedians made you laugh harder than did any particular one of the stars of yesterday, but certainly there was never a time when the entire combination was more ideally balanced than in yesterday's great paper. We are certain that business men were never better able to find just what they wanted in a shorter space of time, and found it dished up in a manner which made the hunting for it easy and the reading of it a season of delight. Nearly all of the news of yesterday was of signal importance. There was not a dull line in any of the fiction pages. The features were selected to suit any and all classes of readers, and every Gazette "funny man" was in the rarest form. What more is necessary to make a great paper? Suggestions from well-wishers are always welcome.

The one hundredth anniversary of Nelson's naval victory over the combined fleets of France and Spain at Trafalgar was celebrated throughout Great Britain. A strike of railroad employes tied up traffic in Russia.

President Roosevelt was given a great ovation in Florida and talked about the Panama canal. The barge Tasmania was lost with her crew of eight, bringing the total casualties of the storm on the great lakes up to 17. A suicide pact entered into between citizens of Brooklyn was faithfully carried out. The Welsh synod of Ohio expressed itself as being unanimously opposed to the re-election of Gov. Herrick. Secretary of War Taft defended rate legislation and Gov. Herrick's administration in Ohio. Campaign issues in Ohio hinge on mere technicalities of Bannock local option law. A hotel employe at Bridgeport, Conn., has found evidence that Cunliffe burned much money. The finances of the Wabash railroad will be discussed by congress. Presbyterian state synod in session at Greensburg had to wait all day to be invited somewhere next year. It was an easy task to make up the state official ballot.

Miss Evangeline C. Booth, commander of the Salvation army in the United States, paid a visit to Pittsburgh. The Uniontown and Wheeling Short line will cross the Monongahela on a notable double-deck bridge 125 feet above the water. County Republicans enthusiastically adopted a party platform. Director Bigelow said Nieswaner published letter of his own dismissal. Nieswaner has brought suit for $50,000 against the director. E. G. Cunliffe, who robbed the Adams Express Company, was sent to jail in default of $50,000 bail. The Pittsburgh & Lake Erie installed dining coaches and Pullman observation parlor cars on its Buffalo limited trains. Ferger David S. Scott insisted on a penitentiary sentence and Judge Macfarlane accommodated him. H. Glenn Cunningham was saved from a sentence in a penal institution by reason of his brothers being missionaries. Four police-protected gambling houses in the downtown district were raided by county detectives. Republican county committee gave out a list of its speaker assignments. Strict silence is now maintained by the officials of the Enterprise National bank.

Tommy Leach is said to be stated to captain the Pittsburgh Tri-State league team. It is reported that another major league baseball team will enter the field next year. The first week of the Allegheny County Bowling league was productive of good and bad records. W. U. P. was beaten 20 to 0 at Cornell. Yale, Princeton, Harvard and U. of P. all won their games.

New York stocks were active and buoyant and closed with large net gains. The weekly bank statement was favorable, showing a decrease in loans and an increase in cash and surplus reserve. Brewing securities were the active feature of the local market. Wheat was stronger.

New President of Westminster College

THE REV. DR. R. M. RUSSELL.

REV. DR. R. M. RUSSELL ACCEPTS PRESIDENCY

Pastor of Sixth United Presbyterian Church Announces Purpose to Direct College.

The Rev. Dr. R. M. Russell, pastor of the Sixth United Presbyterian church, announced to his congregation yesterday morning that he had decided to accept the presidency of Westminster college, New Wilmington, which proposition he has been considering for some time.

In announcing himself as ready to leave one of the most important pulpits in the United Presbyterian church, which commands an annual salary of $5,000, to accept a college presidency at $5,000 a year, Dr. Russell cited the fact that his usefulness would be prolonged by the change and gave other logical reasons. He announced that when his resignation would be presented it would become effective on April 1 next, the 25th anniversary of his installation as pastor of the congregation.

Dr. Russell was born in Mercer county in 1858 and graduated from Westminster college in 1880, and from the Allegheny Theological seminary in 1884. His first charge was in Caledonia, N. Y., which he left to accept his present charge.

In announcing his decision to the congregation yesterday morning, Dr. Russell said in part:

To a certain degree the personal element has been involved. I have felt myself confronted with two alternatives—that of a possible eight or ten years' service here, closing with a congenial relation and definite vitality and going forth to a lesser work, or no work, followed by your sympathy; or the present entrance into educational work, where, with the protracted vacations of college life, I may hope for a longer period of physical vigor and a possible service of 18 or 20 years in the church.

Family considerations have also had bearing upon my decision, for all that has been said concerning the lengthening of Christian service applies with equal force to her who has for 15 years shared every aspiration for faithful service. To be so situated as to have my children under my roof during a longer period of mental development and in an institution whose policy I can to some degree direct, is also an increasing attractive prospect. But the chief reason for my decision is that God has laid upon my heart the educational needs of our denomination.

There is certainly room for a successful denominational college and elements for its maintenance in the three synods of the east where more than 40,000 communicants are enrolled as members of the United Presbyterian church. The possibilities of Westminster college seem to me to be almost boundless. It has the right name—for what word is richer in the memory of the world's great ones and great thought than the name of that abbey. Notwithstanding the opinions of the past I believe the location is all right. It is central to a vast rural as well as urban population. It has a record of which it might well be proud. Its needs are such as can be met by the eastern part of our church if the problem be approached with any degree of moral earnestness and generosity. My faith in the response of the whole church to the call that will be made on behalf of Westminster is absolute.

At a congregational meeting in the near future at a time to be designated by the session, you will be asked to concur in the resignation then to be presented and to join me in petition to presbytery for such act as will permit the carrying out of the new plan.

The resignation contemplated will take effect after the first Sabbath of April, 1906, at which time there will be the completion of 15 years of unbroken ministry. The months of spring and early summer will be devoted to visiting the most important colleges of the east, and especially some of the most successful of the larger small colleges. While assuming the duties of the new position at the close of commencement week in June, the formal induction into office by inauguration exercises will not take place until the early autumn.

NEW M'KEESPORT CHURCH.

Swedish Congregation Lays Corner Stone of Building in Riverview Park.

The corner stone of the First Swedish Methodist Episcopal church at Jenny Lind and Soles streets, Riverview park, McKeesport, was laid yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was in charge of the Rev. P. A. Kropp, pastor of the congregation, assisted by the Rev. August Moody, pastor of the West Swedish Evangelical church of McKeesport, and the Rev. Dr. John Lundin of Warren, Pa., presiding elder of the Jamestown conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

In a copper box in the corner stone were deposited current newspapers, a roster of the congregation, its officers and coins. The church, which is expected to be completed by January 30, will be of brick veneer, and will have a seating capacity of 600. The congregation now numbers 120.

POPE PIUS IS ILL.

His Physician, However, Makes a Statement That the Indisposition is Very Slight.

ROME, Oct. 22.—A rumor spread through the city this morning that the pope was ill. Dr. Lapponi, his physician, however, announces that "the statement is inexact;" the pope merely having a cold, so slight that it scarcely can be called an indisposition. Since his last attack of gout in January, his holiness, the doctor says, has enjoyed perfect health.

Today the pope received over 200 persons. The fact that these audiences had not been suspended is the best evidence of the pope's good health.

Mrs. Fiske Coming.

Dramatic interest will center next week in the appearance of Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan Company in "Leah Kleschna" at the Belasco. Their engagement is for one week only, with a Saturday matinee. Seats for this engagement go on sale Thursday morning. Mail orders accompanied by remittance will be filled in the order of their receipt.

PSALMS ARE DISCUSSED FROM MANY PULPITS

United Presbyterian Pastors Preach on Theme in Accord With Request of General Assembly.

In accord with action taken at the last session of the general assembly of the United Presbyterian church, providing "that pastors throughout the church be requested to devote their discourses on Sabbath, October 22, to the subject of psalmody, with a view to enlisting the interest of the people at large in the theme of the approaching conventions," this subject was discussed in all United Presbyterian churches in this and other localities yesterday.

In this connection the Rev. Dr. C. F. Wishart of the Eleventh church, Allegheny, spoke yesterday morning on "The Psalms," and said in part:

The position to which the church clings in its use of the psalms as exclusive matter of divine praise rests upon our belief in their divine appointment. We hold the psalms to have been written by men under the power of inspiration and collected into a book under the guidance of the same spirit who inspired the poets. We believe this book to have been given by God as the song book for the church. We can find nothing which impels us to think the divine authority of that song book was ever annulled or abrogated. On the contrary we find Christ and his apostles placing the seal of divine approbation upon it. And we find the spirit vindicating His own song book by the blessing which has followed its use, in all times and among all people where these sacred words have gone.

And wherever the psalms have had a fair chance they have vindicated themselves. Too often have handicapped them by bad versions and worse music. And in spite of this they have wrought strong, manly piety in the lives of those who have used them. The world has yet to see what they can do, when versions and music have more nearly approached the majestic splendor of the subject matter. The literary style of the psalms may well challenge the world. Carlyle has said, "David's life and history, as written for us in those psalms of his, I consider to be the truest emblem ever given of a man's moral progress and warfare here below." Prof. Moulton has called them "the perfection of lyric poetry." But beyond all mere literary excellence these songs are marvelous in their breadth and comprehensiveness. Every phase of adoration, every attribute of the divine nature, every need of humanity, every joy and sorrow, every smile and tear, are here reflected. To widely separated nations, to diverse times and civilizations, they have come with the same message of blessing. There is nothing here of the morbid, no sickly mawkishness, no "ingrowing sentimentality." But these songs are rugged, virile, objective and unspeakably majestic. They affect us like the roll of the surf, the granite-walled cliff, the roar of the cataract; the moan of the somber pines, the glint of the golden sunshine on the crest of the wave, the voices of the wind, the gleam of the stars. I love the words of the great and good men who have given the world a wealth of devotional poetry. Bernard, and Keble, and Newman, and Faber, and Bonar, and scores of their kind have done splendid service for God and humanity in their great devotional songs, which warm the heart and invigorate the spiritual life. But when one who was trained to sing the old psalms almost from his mother's cradle would worship his God with the highest and best, the most majestic and the most satisfying, he turns instinctively, with reverence and love, to the Spirit's songs, that have stood the test of the ages, and whose music the world can ill afford to let die.

TREASURES SAFE WHEN IN HEAVEN

Pastor Condoles With Congregation Which Has Its Savings in the Enterprise Bank.

CHURCH HAS $3,500 THERE

"Where Our Treasures Are Secure," was the sermon theme of the Rev. Dr. D. A. Greene to the congregation of the Manchester Presbyterian church, Allegheny, yesterday morning, and was devoted in great measure in drawing lessons from the recent financial difficulties in which the Enterprise bank is envolved. The congregation has a balance of $3,500 in the bank; the pastor depended upon checks on the bank for his salary; members of the congregation are largely represented among the depositors, while one member now has a balance of $18,000 in the institution.

Dr. Greene took for his text: Matthew VI.: 19-21, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon the earth where thieves break through and steal, but in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt and where thieves do not break through nor steal," and said in part:

These words came from the blessed Master Himself. They remind us that there are things perishable and things perpetual; treasures temporal and treasures eternal. The ravages of time, moth and rust, or the rogues of trade, thieves, render earthly treasures insecure. There is but one place where treasures are secure—heaven.

These truths appeal to us today with peculiar force because of the events of the past week. Less than one block from us stands the Enterprise bank. We believed it to be as staunch in finance as it is stately in appearance. That it overshadowed other banks on Beaver avenue as it does our building. We as a congregation verified our supreme confidence in the institution by placing there over $2,000, or to be accurate, $3,400—the hard earnings of our people, secured by giving suppers, by sales and by contributions with a view of erecting a new church. Happily, about $10,000 of your savings are invested in real estate on Locust street. What name would be most appropriate to those having in charge so sacred a trust, who would recklessly speculate with it for their own personal gain? The word the text uses would be the most expressive.

In addition to the church money a great many of our people have money on deposit in the Enterprise bank—the amounts ranging from a few dollars to $18,000. The local patronage and state deposits I can find but one reason for its failure. I would rather say rash speculation than rank rascality. It may yet be known what caused Mr. Clark, the cashier, to commit self-murder. Let us be charitable in our judgment. Mr. Clark had entirely too much liberty with the bank's funds.

Too much authority in church matters makes a man a pope; in political affairs it makes a man a dictator; too much liberty in financial matters makes a man a speculator—sometimes worse. Good men—men of business sagacity—say that depositors will be paid in full. There are splendid men in every department of the bank, but the incident will serve to call attention of our 400 people to the necessity of exercising care. We pity the man who has misplaced the means intended to provide a home for himself in his dependency. But the person is vastly more unfortunate who is deceived as to his provision for an eternal home.

We may lay up treasures in heaven by good works. The judgment scene as described by Christ represents the saved to have fed the hungry, clothed the naked and visited the sick. Our good works, to be heavenly treasures, must have love of Christ as their central motive. We must set our hearts on high Christian attainments, perfection of character and active discipleship if we are to have treasures above.

UNVEIL MONUMENT TO POPE.

Tribute to Pius X., Contributed by Catholics Throughout the World, Is Dedicated at His Native Town.

ROME, Oct. 22.—A monument to Pope Pius X., subscribed for by Catholics all over the world, was unveiled this morning at Riese, the little village in the Venitian province where the pope was born. His holiness is represented in the act of administering a benediction.

The entire village was decorated and national flags were conspicuous everywhere, while the walls were covered with inscriptions, one of which read: "Long live Pope Pius X., the first citizen of the world." The authorities formed a procession, headed by the Patriarch of Venice and six bishops of the neighboring dioceses, to the house where the pope was born. The oldest sister of the pope and other relatives who own an inn called "The Two Swords," where they themselves serve the customers, were the recipients of much attention. Many telegrams were sent to his holiness.

FINE DISPLAY OF CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Peacock and Frick Conservatories Thrown Open to the Public.

THE GARDENIA OF ROMANCE

Two flower shows, not so extensive but just as beautiful on a smaller scale as the one that will open in the Schenley park conservatory next Sunday, were on view in the East End yesterday. The extensive greenhouses of Alexander R. Peacock and H. C. Frick were thrown open to the public. The day was raw and threatening, but despite the weather hundreds visited the two conservatories. At both places chrysanthemums, begonias and cyclamens were on view. Mr. Peacock and Mr. Frick both have large collections.

At Mr. Peacock's visitors found a flower of which most had read but few had seen, a flower old in novel literature and once the buttonhole flower par excellence, the famous gardenia. Who has not read how the duke of Plentyrocks, on his way to call on the Lady Gladys, dropped into the florist's and bought a gardenia for his buttonhole. The gardenia is an old hothouse flower, but it is so difficult to rear under the artificial conditions necessary in temperate climes that it is seldom seen in non-commercial conservatories. For example there are no gardenias in the Schenley park conservatory, or in the greenhouses in the Allegheny parks or at Mr. Frick's place.

On a bench in Mr. Peacock's conservatory is a large collection of gardenias, the leaves as beautifully green as if grown under natural conditions, the flowers as snowy white and fragrant. There were several visitors who have lived in Florida and one of them saw the name "gardenia" on a card stuck in one of the pots. From where she stood she could not see the flowers.

Meets an Old Friend.

"Oh, I must see the gardenias," she said to the woman with her. "I have read about them since I was a girl and I used to wish that some of my callers would wear a gardenia, so that I would at least know what the flower looked like, but an old fashioned pink or a moss rose was the height of their aspirations."

"Why," she exclaimed, on seeing the flowers themselves, "that looks like the cape jessamine."

"It is the cape jessamine, madam," said Gardener Thomas Jenkinson.

"I have seen thousands of cape jessamine bushes during the five years I was in Florida," remarked the lady, "in fact they grew out in the yard there. These are just as beautiful as they were. But to think that I first saw the cape jessamine 10 years ago, admired it and yet never knew that the gardenia of my dreams was before me."

Of course the main display at both the Peacock and Frick conservatories is of chrysanthemums. Very perfect specimens of the Mrs. J. H. Tranter, a bloom of last year's discovery, are found. The Mrs. E. Thirkell, the most reliable exhibition chrysanthemum, is represented by very good specimens. The Mrs. H. Weeks, the largest chrysanthemum known, is represented at the Peacock conservatory by several blooms that are not yet fully out. Last year this conservatory had specimens 22 inches across and it is expected that the plants will produce a few such splendid flowers this year. Among other fine chrysanthemums are the Mrs. A. J. Miller, this year's breeding; the Merstham yellow, the red Barkley and the Mrs. William Duckham.

Fine Displays of Begonias.

The begonia display at both houses is very fine, the Gloire de Lorraine being the standby, a large number of the white Turnford hall variety being noticeable at Mr. Frick's Gardener David Fraser having paid particular attention to having a goodly number of them.

Many visitors went to the Schenley park conservatory, being under the impression that the chrysanthemum show there was ready. The conservatory was open as usual, but the display will not be ready until next Sunday. It will be a very fine show, and by putting off the opening the chrysanthemums will be seen at their best, just as at the Peacock and Frick conservatories the exhibition will be finer next Sunday than yesterday.

Not many visitors went to the zoological garden in Highland, but those who did saw the bear presented by Councilman John Taylor of the Twenty-first ward.

The fall planting of Dutch bulbs for the open-air spring display will begin this week in all the city parks. The bedding plants will all be dug up and bulbs planted in their place. This year 40,000 bulbs will be placed in Schenley, 30,000 in Highland and 20,000 in the parks on the South Side.
